Called to Ministry A Journey of Service

Ephesians 4:11-16

¹¹ And he gave the apostles, the prophets, the evangelists, the shepherds and teachers, ¹² to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ, ¹³ until we all attain to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to mature manhood, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ, ¹⁴ so that we may no longer be children, tossed to and fro by the waves and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by human cunning, by craftiness in deceitful schemes. ¹⁵ Rather, speaking the truth in love, we are to grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ, ¹⁶ from whom the whole body, joined and held together by every joint with which it is equipped, when each part is working properly, makes the body grow so that it builds itself up in love.

WELCOME

On behalf of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK, it is my privilege to welcome you to our Handbook for commissioning in the ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK, and to the company of God-called ministers! You are embarking on an exciting journey as you respond to God's call upon your life. We want you to know that ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK believes in you and is partnering with you in this exciting journey of ministry. ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK recognizes and insists that all believers have committed to them a dispensation of the gospel that they are to minister to all people.

We also recognize and hold that the Head of the Church calls some men and women to the more official and public work of the ministry. As our Lord called to him whom he would, and chose and ordained His 12 apostles "That they might be with him and that he might send them out to preach." (Mark 3:14), so he still calls and sends out messengers of the Gospel. The Church, illuminated by the Holy Spirit, will recognize the Lord's call.

The ministry also recognizes on the basis of Scripture and experience that God calls individuals to a lifetime of ministry who do not witness to a specific call to preach. When the church discovers a divine call, the proper steps should be taken for its recognition and endorsement, and all suitable help should be given to open the way for the candidate to enter the ministry.

The church celebrates with you God's divine call upon your life! With God's high calling to give yourself to His service through vocational ministry comes the powerful promise of partnership with the God who calls you. "The one who calls you is faithful, and he will do it" (1 Thessalonians 5:24). The church also partners with you providing climate and resources to assist with recognition of your call, educational preparation, credentialing, lifelong learning, appreciation, etc. I commend to you this Handbook for ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK as an expression of our partnership and help in your journey.

I would like it to be possible for me to personally shake your hand and celebrate with you the exciting journey ahead and as I hold your hand and look into your eyes, I would want to say once more, always remember that it is God alone who calls, and it is his call alone that sustains you as you live out his call, the One who calls is faithful and he will do it and carry you through to the end!

Your humble servant,

Dr. Michael L. Hargett, Sr. PhD Servant Leader ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK

Welcome to the Journey

This Handbook for ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK is designed for the training and development of ministers and to guide you through the journey of preparing for ministry. Preparation for ministry is a lifetime process because ministry is a lifetime commitment. We hope this Handbook will serve as a resource to answer your questions, as well as a place to journal and document your progress. Welcome to the journey.

Looking Ahead

Everyone's journey is different, but everyone also encounters a certain number of shared experiences. This introduction will describe the main steps along the journey you will share with others in vocational ministry. This overview of the journey should help orient you for what lies ahead.

STAGE ONE: The Call

The journey into vocational ministry can be described in four main stages. Each stage possesses milestones that mark progress within that stage. You are now embarking on the first stage, "The Call". For some people this part of the journey is the most difficult. They wrestle with the question of whether or not they are really called. You may experience significant life changes during this stage (beginning college, working to support yourself, entering into marriage, parenting a family, etc.), which will cause you to reevaluate your call. All this and more is a normal part of Stage One.

As you begin your journey, you may have a tendency to be overwhelmed with questions and possibilities. Please look for opportunities to talk with your pastor, mentor, or ministry leader about both your enthusiasm for obeying God's call to ministry and your uncertainties about how all the details will work out. These individuals have been down similar paths and will be glad to listen to you and offer a few pointers along the way.

STAGE TWO: Educational Preparation

To be an effective minister, you need to have an understanding of the Bible, the Church, Christian theology, and much more. ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK has always been committed to educating those called to ministry. The ministry has provided several paths by which you may achieve an adequate education to prepare you for ministry. These paths will be explained in detail later in this Handbook. The ordination and educational portion of the journey will occupy many years of your life. You will want to consider carefully which path best fits your needs and plans for future ministry.

Even though you will want to learn and grow throughout your ministry, the normal expectation is for concentrated study early in your ministry preparation. This study will provide basic understandings and skills and will set the stage for your lifelong learning process.

STAGE THREE: The Road to Licensing, Ordination and Commissioning

As you are completing your educational preparation, you will find God's leading into a specific ministry experience. You will be glad to know that many resources are available to help you find a ministry assignment that best fits your skills and interests. Once you get settled into that exciting, stretching, first ministry role, you will begin to grow in your ability actually to do ministry while others mentor and evaluate you. The culminating milestone for this third stage is licensing, ordination and commissioning.

STAGE FOUR: Lifelong Learning

Everyone moves through a series of changes in the course of a lifetime in ministry. The combination of changes in society, technology, ministry assignments, and personal development means a minister is constantly in need of more preparation for the ministry assignment in which he or she serves. Often that preparation is informal, but ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK also asks its ministers to provide accountability for lifelong learning through a more formal process of continuing ministry education and training.

These four stages describe the major periods of your lifetime of ministry preparation. Sometimes the stages will overlap in time. For example, many people are still sorting out the details of their call (Stage One) while they are involved in their educational preparation (Stage Two). Some people overlap their preparation (Stage Two) with their ministry experience that leads toward ordination (Stage Three). Don't worry too much about stages three and four at the beginning. You'll have plenty to attain in accepting and processing your call and beginning your educational preparation. However, you do need to know that the high calling of ordained ministry will be a journey full of excitement, expectations, and development throughout your life. Once again, welcome to the journey. Enjoy each new step as God unfolds it before you!

Stage One: The Call

A Call from God

As Jesus walked beside the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the lake, for they were fishermen. "Come, follow me," Jesus said, "and I will make you fishers of men." At once they left their nets and followed him. When he had gone a little farther, he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John in a boat, preparing their nets. Without delay he called them, and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired and followed him (Mark 1:16-20, NIV).

Throughout the Bible, God has called men and women to follow Him into a life of full-time ministry. God's call goes back as far as Abraham and Moses and continues into the New Testament with Jesus' disciples and Paul. Still today, God is calling people into ministry.

The reason you are reading this Handbook is because you have a sense that God now has His call on your life. A lot of different emotions go along with a call to full-time ministry: excitement, joy, and passion as well as disbelief, fear, and unworthiness. You may already be experiencing all of these emotions at one time or another.

How Do I Know for Sure?

Maybe the most important (and most difficult) part of responding to God's call is making sure you are, in fact, called! How can you know such a thing for certain?

There is no simple, one-two-three formula to help know for sure if you are specifically called to the ministry. No one can tell you that for certain. It is something you ultimately have to work out between you and God.

But at the same time, you need to know with certainty your call from God to full-time ministry is without a doubt the most important decision of your life. Many times in your ministry, the certainty of your call will be the only thing holding you steady in difficult times.

Two Arrows, Four Quadrants

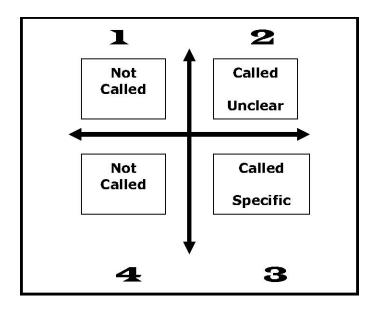

Let this horizontal arrow represent how you are thinking/feeling right now about God's call on your life. On a scale of 1 to 10, how certain are you? If you are sure He is not calling you to full-time ministry, you would score a 1. If you are already certain and know He has called you to full-time ministry, you would be a 10. Right now on your journey, you might be a 6 or an 8.

But you are also wondering about and trying to pray about another issue: if God is calling me into the ministry, to what kind of ministry is He calling me? If you have no idea what area of ministry God has in store for you, you would score a 1 on this vertical arrow. If God has already made it crystal clear to you, you would score a 10.

When you put these two arrows (axes) together, they look like this:

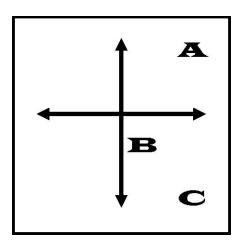

People in quadrant 1 do not have a sense of calling to full-time ministry and also do not yet know what kind of profession/career God has planned for them. Quadrant 2 people have a sense of God's call on their life but they don't yet know to what specific area of ministry they are called. In quadrant 3, people have both a sense of God's call and a good idea as to what kind of ministry they will be doing. Finally, people in quadrant 4 don't have a sense of God's calling to ministry, but do have a clear idea of what profession they are going into.

Examples

Where do you fit on this "map?" Let's look at a few examples of what this might look like for you: If you plotted yourself on this "map" and found yourself at position "A" (10...1), this would indicate you have a very strong, certain call to full-time ministry, but you have no clue to what specific area of ministry God is calling you. Someone who found themselves at position "B" (6...7) thinks God might be calling them into the ministry, and if He is, they have a feeling it might be in the area of youth ministry. The person at point "C" (10...10) not only knows for certain they are called, but they are specifically called to be a missionary, in Hawaii!

How to Pray about Your Call

The reason for making the distinctions between these four quadrants is to help you in praying about your call. You need to be aware there are at least two distinct kinds of prayers going on in your heart as you try to discern both the certainty and the clarity of your call.

First of all, you need to know whether you are called or not (horizontal axis). Then, a different prayer should ask God for direction as to what specific kind of ministry He is calling you to (vertical axis). Just because God has not shown what kind of ministry you will to do in the future, that should not cause you to doubt He has truly called you into ministry.

You should not be surprised to find yourself moving from one quadrant to another as you grow and learn more about God's call and your ministry. Some people have started out in quadrant 1 just helping out with the teens in their local church and ended up in quadrant 3 with a clear call to full-time youth ministry. Some students have entered college thinking they knew exactly what God was calling them to (quadrant 3), but then discovered new ministry options and opportunities that caused uncertainty as to where they were going to serve (quadrant 2). Others start out with a clear call to ministry but a fuzzy destination (quadrant 2) and finally find their place in ministry (quadrant 3) through a process of elimination.

Owning Your Call to Ministry

During the first few years of your ministry, you will be asked to describe your call to various representatives of the church. In the difficult times, your call will serve as an anchor point. To help establish your confidence in your calling, write a description of God's call to this point, including the date or period of time and the experience(s) that lead you to think, or at least suspect, that God is calling you to Christian ministry. What is your response to God's call? With whom have you discussed this? What was said?

(You can write about your call on Form F-1, provided for you in the Appendix.)

Registration

When you are comfortable enough with your call to move beyond your conversation with your Pastor, Elder, Apostle, Bishop or mentor, you may fill out an application and registration form.

Registration will also make additional resources of the church available to you. If you wish to read on and do some or most of the exercises in this section before registering, you may do so.

Exploring Your Call

ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK believes in both the individual experience of a call and the confirmation of that call by the Body of Christ. The church assumes your call is genuine, but every testimony to a call must be confirmed by God giving "gifts and graces" appropriate for ministry to persons He calls.

It would be helpful to read Manual paragraphs 400-401.6 on the "Call and Qualifications of the Minister." ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK recognizes three categories of ministry.

Finding Your Place in Ministry

In God's big church there is room for many different kinds of people doing many different kinds of ministry. In the months and years ahead, you will discover numerous questionnaires that will help you learn more about yourself and the gifts and talents you have to offer in ministry. You will be able to take personality profiles, spiritual gift inventories, a Ministry Strengths and Gifts Survey, and other tools to guide you in your search for the perfect ministerial fit for you.

When you are eventually assigned to a place of ministry, it may be in one of the following areas:

Teacher Pastor Evangelist Prophet Apostle

- Associate/Assistant minister who specializes in
 - . Administration
 - . Compassionate ministries
 - . Christian education
 - . Youth ministry
 - . Media ministry
 - . Spiritual formation/pastoral care

For a more complete description for each of these areas and how to prepare for this ministry specialty, see Appendix A.

If you feel clear about the ministry role to which you are called, write a description on Form F-3 of the confirmation of your call when you read the description of that role in the Manual. If you don't feel clear about a ministry role, you're not alone. Many people are uncertain about the role God wants them to fulfill. Write a paragraph or two about the most appealing ministry roles and why they appeal to you (Form F-3). In every case commit yourself to God's guidance and the church's suggestions regarding the ministry role you should fulfill at various stages of your ministry journey.

Discovering Your Gifts and Graces

Periodically you should answer the following questions about your own sense of gifts and graces for ministry. In the months and years of your acceptance of your call, you should experience growth in your ability to give a sincerely positive answer to these questions.

- :. Have I learned to pray?
- .. Are my intellectual abilities up to the task of ministry? How much am I willing to give up in order to serve the poor and the sick?
- :. Am I willing to take up the Cross and die to self and the world?
- :. How deep is my capacity to feel another's hurts?
- :. Is agape love growing in my heart?
- :. Am I capable of leading a community of faith?
- :. Can I communicate the Christian message with persuasiveness and integrity?
- :. Am I a person in whom the community of faith can place full trust?
- .. Do I love to read and study Scripture?
- .. Am I learning the disciplines to be a competent interpreter of Scripture? Am I willing to be instructed by the traditions and history of the Church?
- ... Can I present the Christian faith in an understandable way to a variety of contemporary, intelligent people?
- .. Am I willing to be accountable to the policies and governing procedures of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK?
- :. Are my ministry gifts being demonstrated in public teaching and service?
- :. How does the community of faith respond to my initial efforts at ministry?

That's quite a list, isn't it? But please don't see these questions as "barriers" you must overcome before you enter the ministry. Rather, they are areas of accountability meant to guide you throughout the lifetime journey of ministry. Plan to review these questions every 6 to 12 months during the rest of your ministry. (Form F-5 is available as a place to record your thoughts.)

They will help sensitize you to areas needing attention for the sake of your ministry and for the sake of the church. Don't attempt this review when you are extremely tired or not feeling well. The questions are designed to address your best and true self, not your exhausted and rundown self. You may want to write a brief plan for special study, discipline, and accountability so you can answer more positively and with greater integrity at your next self-review.

Should you begin to question your call as you ask these questions, you'll not be the first person to do so. You should consider prayerfully your sense of calling and ways in which the church has enthusiastically or hesitatingly affirmed your call. You'll want to talk with trusted, mature, Christian friends (e.g., your pastor, district elder, and/or mentor) about your questions. Don't be hasty in deciding you misinterpreted a call or are no longer called into ministry. If, after careful prayer, counsel, and consideration you decide you misinterpreted a call or are no longer called, don't take that as a sign of spiritual failure. God will make use of all you have learned and have developed in your time of preparation for ministry. Don't let well-intentioned friends or acquaintances make you feel guilty for your change in understanding God's will for your life. It's better to deal with a mistaken call or a new direction in your life when you know it has happened, rather than continuing preparation and/or ministry out of a false sense of duty or the desire to please someone else. If you've begun the educational process of ministry preparation outlined in Stage Two, you may want to see if your work would qualify for a Certificate of Lay Ministry.

Though you agreed to the basic statements of faith of the church when you became a member of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK, you should also review the "Church Constitution" and "Code of Ethics" found in the New Member's Manual. If you discover something in the manual you don't understand or with which you don't agree, make a note to ask for help on the subject from the pastor. It is not unusual for a young person or a new Christian to question certain teachings and positions of the church. However, in order actually to enter ministry in ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK, you will need to have come to agreement with its doctrines and standards. Use Form F-6 to write descriptions of the doctrines and standards of the church that seem most distinctive and important to you.

Discovering the Church

The Church will be the primary context of your ministry. As you live within your culture and society, your purpose will be to win persons to Christ and integrate them into the life of the Church so the Church can, in turn, be God's transforming agent in the world. For this reason it is extremely important for you to understand the purpose and mission of the Church. This task involves several dimensions. Every church, whether independent or part of a denomination, develops a structure to strengthen the spiritual life of its members, and works to fulfill the Great Commandment to go into the entire world. You'll need to learn the institutional structures and policies of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK. They're important resources for your ministry.

When you get the chance, you should read the church Doctrine and Administration Manual on "Local Church Government." You'll want to review this section of the Manual periodically. It describes the basic structures a local congregation uses to function effectively for Christ, including the responsibilities of the pastor and the church board. You'll first need to know how to serve well as a layperson in a local church before you have opportunity to serve in other parts of the organizational structure.

Even more important than the administrative and institutional structures of the church is your understanding and internalization of God's vision for the Church. If you are, or have been, part of a healthy church, you have already experienced some of the key elements of God's vision for the Church. You'll want to give special attention to the theology of the Church in your preparation for the ministry. At this point you should be aware that the Church is both a human organization and a theological reality. The New Testament, and especially the Book of Ephesians, envisions the Church as an alternative reality to typical human existence. The Church in 1 Peter is described as resident aliens. We live in this world, but our allegiance is to the kingdom of God.

Certifying Your Call and Ministry

The theology of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK makes it important for her ministers to be properly "connected" to the church. You've already begun that process by speaking with your pastor, district superintendent, or professor and receiving this Handbook. The church has developed a system by which your connection is certified in various stages.

In Stage Three of this Handbook, you can read further about the subsequent steps you will take on the road to being ordained.

Local Covenant Service

One of the expressions of "connection" between you, the church, and your journey of ministry is the Local Covenant Service. Your pastor will be responsible for the time and structure of that service to present you publicly with your local minister's license. You'll want to reflect on the significant details and record your responses and feelings about this important occasion (Form F-7). Feel free to ask your pastor about how the service will be conducted and when it might be held.

On Form F-8 describe how each of the minister's activities on Form F-4 are related to each of the other activities. Describe how each activity contributes to the health of a local congregation.

Stage Two: Educational Preparation

ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK has always believed a call to ministry is a call to preparation. A significant part of that preparation is education. Both general education, which enables a minister to speak intelligently with any educated person, and theological education, which equips the minister to bring the resources of the Christian church to bear on the needs of the world, are needed. This commitment to education led to the founding of colleges and universities early in our church's history. The result is eight liberal arts colleges and universities, a seminary for graduate professional preparation for ministry, and a Bible college. Around the world ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK has more than 50 educational institutions that provide educational preparation for ministry.

Minimum Educational Expectations

Within the United States the educational alternatives for preparing for ministry assume you have a high school diploma or equivalent General Education Diploma (GED). In obtaining the diploma, you have attained at least a basic level of mental development, maturity, and reading and writing skills, so you can be expected to succeed in your ministerial studies. If you do not have a high school diploma at this time, your pastor can help you pursue the diploma and guide you in acquiring the needed skills to succeed in the prescribed course of study.

The Course of Study

To be a minister in ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK, everyone has to complete an approved/validated course of study. The ELFM has established one comprehensive course of study that can be applied to all the various fields of ministry. Included in this course of study is training in the following areas:

- Anthropology
- Bible
- Christian Education
- Church Administration
- Church History
- Congregational Care
- Counseling
- Ethics
- Evangelism
- Missions
- Practical Ministry Skills
- Spiritual Formation
- Theology
- Worship

The course of study represents a significant educational experience. It will take time and effort to complete, but you will be thankful for the training and preparation it provides.

Educational Paths

You can complete the course of study in a number of different ways. These alternative paths provide a flexible approach that allows for the special needs of men and women God is calling into ministry. Your pastor or ELFM would be more than willing to help you choose the option best suited for you! It is also possible to blend/mix more than one method in order to accomplish the goal of preparing yourself for ministry.

Here are some of the most frequently traveled paths:

- Religion major at a ELFM affiliate college
- ➤ Religion major at a ELFM affiliate plus a master's degree from a Theological Seminary
- Major in business, psychology, etc. at a ELFM affiliate (or other) college plus a master's degree at ELFM affiliate Theological Seminary.
- ➤ ELFM Minister's Training Course
- > ELFM Modular Course of Study program.

The ideal path for educational preparation for ministry in ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK is a bachelor's degree from a ELFM affiliate college or university and a graduate degree from ELFM affiliate Theological Seminary. If you have not entered or completed college, you should contact the nearest ELFM affiliate college or university and discover what its educational program can contribute to your preparation for ministry. If you have an accredited bachelor's degree, you should contact ELFM Theological Seminary and investigate graduate-level preparation for ministry. The college or seminary will assign you an academic mentor, who will help you select a major or coursework that allows you to complete the educational requirements for ordination as you complete your academic degree.

There may be some college majors in the religion department (i.e., Youth Ministry, Missions, Urban Ministry, etc.) that will enable you to complete most but not the entire course of study. In this scenario, if you graduate but choose not to go to seminary,

Note: A list of religion majors that have been validated for the course of study is maintained on the Clergy Development website. You should also consult a Religion Department advisor at the college/university to insure you have completed the course of study with your major.

You will be able to finish the course of study by taking a few classes via the district training center through your ELFM affiliate. If you have received God's calling later in life and have little or no college work, you should contact ELFM Bible College for information about its programs. NBC is an undergraduate, professional school of ministry specializing in preparation for ministry in both residential and on-line formats. If English is not your first language or if you are unable to relocate to a ELFM college or university, you should contact your ELFM affiliate about ways to complete the course of study.

If none of these options seem to work, your ELFM affiliate can tell you about the Modular Course of Study that will meet the educational requirements for ministry preparation. In this option, you can continue working at your current job while you are moving at your own pace to study and complete the requirements for the course of study. This modular program does not provide you with a college degree but does meet all educational requirements for the course of study.

It's Your Responsibility

Regardless of which educational preparation track you pursue, you will be accountable to the ELFM to show evidence that you are working toward the fulfillment of your educational requirements. Each year, it will be your responsibility to provide this board with a transcript or a letter from the ELFM college/university or seminary where you are enrolled that affirms your progress. If you are pursuing your educational preparation for ministry through non-ELFM schools, you will need to provide transcripts and course descriptions to the board. Your ELFM will advise you of the appropriate information you need to provide them.

Real, Practical Experience

One of the exciting parts of your ministry preparation is having the opportunity to engage in real ministry experience in a local church. No matter what education path you choose, you are guaranteed significant time to be involved in a local church ministry. Hopefully you will get to work in the area(s) you think might be part of God's call on your life. This will give you lots of practical experience and help you clarify your call. Manual 424.3 says, "Graduation from a validated course of study requires the partnering of the educational provider and a local church to direct students in ministerial practices and competency development." This supervised ministry experience also provides you with a pastor/mentor who will guide/advise/correct you as you learn how actually to do ministry. As your classes help you learn the theory of ministry, this part of your preparation will show you how to put the theory into practice.

Your Personal Course of Study

Your individual course of study will be unique based on the educational path you follow in preparation for ministry. If you are following the college/ university and/or seminary track, it is suggested you obtain a copy of the educational requirements of your institution. File this information and refer to it often. It will help you plan your course work and be an incentive as you progress through the course of study.

If you are following a district-directed educational path, you may obtain a copy of your record from the ELFM secretary. You will want to keep this information for easy reference. In conjunction with your mentor and the board secretary, this document will help you complete the educational requirements for ministry.

Basic Library

Every serious candidate for the ministry will desire to build an adequate library. The student should begin with basic "work tools," some standard reference volumes the minister will use for the rest of his or her life (i.e. dictionaries, books on word studies, concordances, commentaries, etc.)

Course of Study Outcomes

The goals of the course of study are embodied in three simple words: BE, KNOW, and DO. The educational curriculum you will study as you prepare for ministry flows from these goals. Appendix B describes expectations for ministers in ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK. To accomplish the goals ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK has for all ministers, the church has adopted a course of study that focuses on four major areas:

- Content
- Competency
- Character
- Context

We have developed learning outcomes (also known as "Ability Statements") in these four areas that represent the basic level of knowledge that should be achieved, regardless of whether you pursue your educational preparation via the college/university and seminary path or the district-directed path. ELFM Affiliate Bible Colleges, each of the ELFM liberal arts colleges and universities, and ELFM Affiliate Theological Seminary have degree programs especially designed to help you achieve these required outcomes of educational preparation for ministry. If you are a licensed minister and have completed one of the validated degree programs at any of these ELFM schools, you will have satisfied the educational preparation requirements for Stage Two of your journey in ministry.

You do need to understand that achievement of the learning outcomes via one path does not necessarily provide interchangeable credit to another path. That is, the Bible college, the liberal arts colleges and universities, and the seminary are answerable to their individual accrediting agencies for credit given. Therefore, if you take classes in the Modular Program, that work does not qualify you for college credit, and credit you earn at an undergraduate level cannot become seminary credit.

Although Stage Two is primarily concerned with educational preparation, the church understands that significant parts of ministry preparation occur in actual ministry rather than through traditional academic means. Some of the required outcomes can only be introduced in a theoretical way in an academic setting or district-directed study. Stage Three, candidacy, will provide the arena in which you develop important practical skills required in ministry.

Ability Statements

On the following pages, you will see a number of learning outcomes in all the various areas of study. You will also notice they are collected under the four major headings of content, competency, character, and context. These outcomes reflect the essential issues of ministry every ELFM Affiliate minister should be knowledgeable about. Even though we don't expect everyone to be a master of every outcome, we do expect students who want to be successful in ministry to give their best efforts to study and learn about these important issues.

These abilities represent the minimum outcomes of an educational program for ordination. Some educational curricula will exceed these minimums. You may feel discouraged by this long list of outcomes because there are so many things you need to know, be, and do in ministry. However, these outcomes are not identified to discourage you. We want to help focus your efforts to become the most excellent and available servant you can be. Knowing these outcomes will help you study better. You will know where you need to work and improve throughout a lifetime of service to God.

Keep a personal record of your awareness of achieving new levels of knowledge and skill on these outcomes. Your appropriate (never arrogant) confidence that God can use you to accomplish great things for His Kingdom will be strengthened as you grow in the knowledge, skills, and character outlined by these outcomes. Once again, welcome to the journey! Enjoy the new lessons God will reveal to you through your educational preparation.

Stage Three: The Road to Ordination

The stage of the journey following your educational preparation is called "candidacy." In general, it refers to a time of ministry experience that may lead to your ordination as a minister of the gospel of Christ. In ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK, it encompasses a time of licensing, discovery of your gifts and graces for ministry, and refining your ministry skills through practical experience. Just as the educational process required accountability for your learning, candidacy will require accountability to the local and district church for your ministry practice.

Ordination and its Importance

The journey of candidacy takes you toward ordination. What is ordination and why is it important? Ordination is the authenticating, authorizing act of the church that recognizes and confirms God's call to ministerial leadership as stewards and proclaimers of both the gospel and the Church of Jesus Christ.

It is important to realize that God calls but the church ordains. The church does not claim the right to call people to the ministry. That is the work of God the Holy Spirit. If you cannot bear witness of God's call to ministry on your life, the church will not ordain you. On the other hand, some people speak of God's call but do not demonstrate gifts and graces for ministry.

In such cases, the District Board of Some districts organize Ministry must work with the candidate to themselves as a single Board clarify his or her understanding of God's of Ministry while other districts call and to give opportunity to divide the responsibilities demonstrate the authenticity of the call. between the ELFM and the church cannot accept into ministry a ELFM.

A person whose life does not show the qualities necessary for ministry, no matter how earnestly a candidate may speak of God's calling. Thus, ordination lies at the end of an authenticating process of one's call. This process may be painful at times. However, the church is humbly confident that whatever pain happens during candidacy is less painful than what might happen without this authentication process. The damage inflicted on churches and on ministers when the gifts and graces of ministry are not present is far more painful.

We believe God has designed the ordination process to protect both the church and individuals from the deep pain of unqualified ministerial leadership. If you find part of this journey difficult, know the difficulty is part of the way God protects you from destructive problems later in ministry.

Ordination is an Authorizing Act

Ordination is an authorizing act of the church. By means of ordination the Church officially approves you as a minister. The ordination service itself bears witness to the Church universal and to the world at large that you are truly a man or woman of God; that you have the gifts and graces for public ministry; that you have a thirst for knowledge, especially knowledge of the Word of God; and that you can communicate clearly the sound doctrine of the gospel. To be able to make such claims about you, the church must question, probe, and observe you in both normal and stressful times. The purpose of the questions, the probing, and the observations is not to put you down, but "to test as by fire," to use a biblical phrase. The biblical assumption of trial by fire is that you will come through the test with proven character and purity. Ordination affirms you are qualified to walk with others through the valley of the shadow of death and to keep their hands and God's hand clasped together in your hand.

Ordination is a Confirming Act

Ordination is also a confirming act of the church. Prior to the public service of ordination the church is at work evaluating you and your potential for ministry. Local church boards consider whether your involvement and testimony make it reasonable for them to issue you a local minister's license. That same board will consider later whether you are worthy of recommendation to the district for licensing. The local church and the ELFM will observe you closely to determine if your district license should be renewed each year. When all requirements for ordination have been met, the ELFM will recommend you to the district assembly. The entire district assembly will vote whether or not to present your name to the presiding general superintendent. He or she, as representative of the International Church of the ELFM, will make the final determination whether or not you should be ordained. If the decision is positive the general superintendent will place his or her hands upon you, you will be surrounded by other ordained ministers, and in the presence of the district assembly you will be set apart as a steward and proclaimer of the gospel. Ordination is truly an act of the entire church.

Ordination Is a Spiritual and Theological Act

Ordination is also a spiritual and theological act of the church. It is more than receiving certification to minister. It is more than passing qualifying exams of your profession. It is the church's acknowledgment of the amazing reality that God calls and gifts certain men and women for ministerial leadership in the church. The church affirms the scriptural tenet of the universal priesthood and ministry of all believers. Ordination is not just to ministry and priestly service, since all believers are called to that. Rather, ordination is the acknowledgment of God's call on certain men and women to leadership in ministry.

Ordination does not convey special status or privilege except in the sense brought by service to the Body of Christ. Jesus taught us that "the greatest among you must become the servant of everyone." For this reason, ordination recognizes and confirms God's calling to leadership as stewards of the gospel. Because Scripture teaches that in Christ there is neither slave nor free, Jew nor Greek, male nor female, but all are one in Christ, ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK ordains persons regardless of their economic status, nationality, race, or gender. Your ordination class may well consist of candidates from several races, born in a variety of countries, representing a whole range of economic backgrounds, including both women and men.

The commonality for all ordinances is the testimony of a call from God and the demonstration of the gifts and graces for ministerial leadership in the life of the church. Because the candidacy portion of the journey is demanding and requires tremendous investment of your energy and resources, the church tries to determine as early as possible if there are any impediments that might preclude your successful completion of candidacy. For this reason, the church will inquire carefully into any criminal activity, sexual misconduct, divorce, indebtedness, or other significant problems in your life history. Though you may find the questions painful, it is better to determine the impact of these issues on your potential for ordination early rather than after many years of preparation and candidacy.

Ordination Is a Privilege, Not a Right

ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES & SHINE GLOBAL NETWORK requires specific educational preparation (described in Stage Two) and a certain level of ministry experience before a person can be ordained. Completion of the minimum educational and experience requirements does not automatically qualify a candidate for ordination. It is the task of the ELFM to determine when you are ready to be interviewed with the possibility of recommendation for ordination. They will use a variety of methods to arrive at this conclusion. Their personal observations of you, reports from your congregation, and reports by your district superintendent are just a few of the ways they will be seeking information to help them know if it is time to invite you for an ordination interview.

For you to announce you have met the ordination requirements and are ready to be ordained reveals a misunderstanding of the nature of ordination and of servant ministry in the church. You do not need to be impatient as the time of possible ordination draws near. Because ordination is for a lifetime, both the church as represented by the ELFM, and you as a Christian will want to be very sure all spiritual, theological, personal, and professional issues pertaining to your fitness for ordination are completely resolved before proceeding.

Steps toward Ordination, Licensing and Commissioning

When you have shared your sense of being called by God into Christian ministry with your pastor, he or she will guide you into both the educational process and the candidacy steps required for ministry. You should develop a close and teachable relationship with your pastor so he or she can counsel you very directly and frankly about any areas in which questions about your fitness for ministry may arise. Depending on your age, maturity, gifts for ministry, and work in the local church, your pastor will decide when the right time has come to recommend you for a local minister's license. Your pastor may spend several months or even several years observing you and questioning you about your understanding of your call. He or she may ask you to seek counsel and direction from other spiritual leaders also as part of the process of clarifying both your own sense of calling and your pastor's confidence that God has genuinely called you.

Stage of Ordination, Licensing and Commissioning

Ordination: Your calling has been publicly recognized and acknowledged.

License: You calling has been publicly recognized, acknowledged, and you are authorized to function in your gifts under the issuing church and/or ministry.

Commission: You calling has been publicly recognized, acknowledged, you are authorized to function in your gifts, and you have been fully trained and released, (in some cases independently) to full operate with

The Minister's License

Once your pastor has concluded it is Use Form F-7 to list and track appropriate to recommend you to the steps to obtain a Local church board, he or she will give you an Minister's License and reflect Application for Local Minister's License." your interview with the pastor will place consideration of your local church board.

You need to fill out this application and return it to your pastor. At a local church board meeting, you should be invited to present your testimony with special emphasis on your call. They may ask you further questions. If you are married, they may ask your spouse to be present and to answer questions. Most likely you will be excused from the board meeting at the time they discuss and vote on whether or not to approve your application. Should the board vote not to grant you the local minister's license, you should consult with your pastor about how you should proceed in finding and doing God's will for your life in ministry.

If the church board recommends granting you the local minister's license, it is hoped your pastor will present the license to you in a public church service, and perhaps ask you to share a few words of testimony of your relationship with the Lord and your calling to ministry. It is possible the pastor will ask several members of the board and/or congregation to come forward and lay hands on you while one of them or your pastor prays for you.

If you have not become actively involved in the ministry of your local church, you are expected to become involved at this point. Your pastor should also instruct you in writing a covenant of what you hope to accomplish in your ministerial development, education, and in your local church ministry. You should keep a copy of this covenant and refer to it periodically. Write about your progress in fulfilling the covenant and your feelings related to being granted a local minister's license. Once you have been granted a local minister's license, your pastor will guide you as to how to enroll with the ELFM. He will send an official letter to the ELFM chairperson, informing them of your new local license.

Renewal of the Local Minister's License

Since many local churches may grant a minister's license for specific periods of time, you will need to apply for renewal of your license before the current license expires. During this renewal interview, you should be prepared to discuss the progress and growth of your spiritual walk, your call to ministry, your ministry involvement, and the status of your educational preparation. If the church board grants renewal of the license, the pastor should mail a copy of the completed "Interview Guidelines for Renewing the Local Minister's License" to the district superintendent. A License authorizes you to carry out the sacraments of the local church in their name and covering. Your ordination is for life but your license expires from time to time.

On Form F-9 describe the relationship of the minister to the local congregation. If you are being called to a specialized area of ministry—youth, children, compassionate ministry—describe the relationship and responsibility of the minister to the specific group to which you will minister.

The District Ministerial Studies Board (ELFM)

When you received your first local minister's license, your pastor should have prepared you for enrollment with the ELFM. The ELFM will provide guidance as you travel through the course of study for ministerial preparation. During your journey toward ordination, the ELFM will work with you to review your educational journey.

The District License

After you have completed a minimum of Use Form F-10 to list and track one year with a local minister's license, the steps to obtain a District your pastor may consider recommending Minister's License and reflect you to the ELFM for a district ministers on your interview with the license. If you have not shown sufficient progress in the gifts and graces of ministry or progress in the course of study, he or she may decide to recommend you for renewal of the local minister's license and ask you to wait another year before pursuing the district license.

If the church board does recommend you for a district license, your pastor should give you an "Application for Minister's License" and help you find out when you need to appear before the ELFM and ELFM. If your pastor does not provide the form and information, you can obtain them from the district secretary. Your pastor and/or local church office should have a copy of the most recent district journal with names, addresses, and phone numbers of all the district personnel.

If the church board decides not to recommend you for a district minister's license, you should attempt to learn from your pastor the reasons they were hesitant to recommend this step. You should not assume the board is "against you." Ministry in the church always requires submitting ourselves to the discernment and evaluation of others. An angry or immature response on your part when a board refuses a license actually confirms their wisdom. Even at this early stage in your journey toward ministry, learning the appropriate way to respond to conflict and disappointment is essential.

The District Ministerial Credentials Board (ELFM)

Your meeting(s) with the ELFM may be the most critical step(s) in the public journey toward ordination. Once you have an interview time established with the ELFM, you must make every effort to be there. If you need to arrange to take off work for your interview, do so. Your interview is very important and should be approached with great seriousness. The ELFM may ask your spouse to be interviewed with you for your first district minister's license. If the board asks to see your spouse in subsequent years for renewal, you and your spouse need to make every effort to comply with the request.

District boards will conduct and structure the interviews for district licensing in different ways. But regardless of the structure and schedule, you should be prepared for searching questions that cover such important areas as:

- : Your spiritual and devotional life
- :. Any spiritual lapses you may have had since becoming a Christian
- : Your experience of entire sanctification
- :. Your support of the doctrinal teachings of the Church of the ELFM Your theology of ministry
- .. Your financial stability and whether indebtedness could limit places where you could be assigned for ministry
- :. Your willingness to work within the structures of the church
- : Your commitment to fulfilling the Great Commission
- .. If you are married, the board will ask you about the health of your marriage and any areas of potential problems.

The ELFM will interview you each year before you receive a district license. When the ELFM believes you are ready to be interviewed regarding ordination, they will invite you to such an interview. They will usually try to schedule the interview several weeks in advance of the district assembly so your family members can have time to plan to attend your ordination if you are approved. If you are married, it will be very important for your spouse to attend this interview. The interview will be similar to your interviews of granting or renewal of a district minister's license, except this interview should be more intense. The ELFM must be very confident you are fully qualified and ready to be ordained before they can proceed. It is hoped you will be able to perceive their love and concern for both you and the church in the interview. They carry heavy responsibility for both you and the church in the decision they will soon make. If you are truly ready for ordination, you will begin to feel a sense of being a colleague with them in the care of the church.

After the interview you will be dismissed and the ELFM will decide whether or not to recommend you to the district assembly and to the general superintendent. You will usually be notified of their decision on the same day.

Renewal of the District Minister's License

Just like the local minister's license, the district minister's license is issued year by year. You must not assume the license will be renewed automatically, even if serving as a pastor (Manual 427.5). The renewal process of licensing must be repeated every year (Manual 427.3). If an application form is not automatically sent to you several weeks prior to the district assembly, it is your responsibility to request one from the district secretary.

You will need to provide an up-to-date and accurate record of your progress in your educational preparation to the ELFM. If you have not completed the equivalent of one year's work in the college/university and/or seminary track, or one-fourth of the district-directed course of study, the ELFM may refer you back to your local church board for consideration for renewal of your local minister's license. After receiving your first district minister's license you will be responsible to complete a minimum of two courses or modules per year to remain eligible for renewal of your district license (Manual 427.3).

To renew your district license, you should follow the procedure outlined by your district. A few districts do not meet every candidate for renewal each year, but you should make every effort to be available for an interview every year. If you are away attending school, you should make every effort to return for your annual interview with the ELFM. If returning is extremely difficult, they may try to help you by scheduling a special meeting during one of your academic breaks. In some cases, candidates in ELFM schools have received permission from their district to be interviewed by a committee of religion faculty and/or pastors where they are attending school.

Time Limitation

A period of 10 years is allowed for the completion of the course of study, from the time you are granted your first district license (by whatever path you choose to pursue).

Clarifying Issues and Personal Guidance

If there is a potential impediment to your being ordained, such as a divorce or legal conviction, the issue must be addressed at your first ELFM interview. Your pastor should alert the district superintendent or the district secretary to any such issues to be addressed with you. However, if he or she fails to do so, you should contact the district superintendent prior to the interview to determine what information you need to provide to clarify the issue for the ELFM, and in some cases for the Board of General Superintendents.

Once you are in a full-time or almost full-time ministry position, you will need mentoring and accountability as you learn the practical aspects of ministry. If your district does not appoint a spiritual/pastoral mentor or mentoring committee for you, you should seek one on your own. It would be best if you could acquire a group of three persons who would meet with you at least every three months, and at least one of whom would make phone contact with you once a week. It would be most helpful for you if at least one of the persons was a member of the ELFM, who would understand the issues of development and formation under consideration at this stage of your ministry preparation.

You should discuss with your mentor or mentoring committee issues of spirituality, spiritual development, transition from the idealism of education to the realism of ministry practice, and the importance of your ministerial formation. You should invite the members of your mentoring committee to visit you unannounced at the church where you are serving, during both service and non-service times. Develop a covenantal foundation for feedback, accountability, and evaluation with them. They can be your best advocates in becoming the minister God has called you to be.

Affirming, Yet Challenging

It is hoped that this interview process will be supportive and affirming to you, while still being challenging and evaluative. District boards are charged with the responsibility of making sure the church's ministers are called, well prepared, and spiritually ready to minister to the people of God and to those who do not yet know Christ. Since this task has such serious, eternal implications, don't be surprised if it sometimes seems too intense, too long, too cautious, or too personal. If you have questions about the interview process, before or after the interview, you should talk with your pastor and/or district superintendent. He or she may help you develop a helpful perspective on the process.

Should the board decide not to recommend you for a district minister's license or ordination at this time, you should inquire of your pastor, mentor, and/or district superintendent about the reasons for the board's decision. Once again this can be an opportunity for growth. An inappropriate response only confirms the wisdom of the

ELFM's Refusal to Recommend

The disappointment of waiting another year to be ordained and/or having a district license renewed is far less than the crisis of having to give up your ordination credential for whatever reason. The careful and deliberative process is important in protecting the purity and efficiency of the ministry you are joining. For this reason the church must follow the teaching of 1 Timothy 5:22, "Do not ordain anyone hastily" (NRSV).

The District Assembly

If the ELFM recommends you for a district minister's license, the recommendation will go to the district assembly for a vote. If the district assembly votes to recommend you, the final decision for your district minister's license will be made by the general superintendent presiding over that assembly. If you are approved at each step, you will receive a district minister's license. Your pastor may ask for the opportunity of recognizing you at a public service of your local church so they can rejoice with you at this step in your journey toward ministry.

Upon receiving a positive recommendation for ordination from the ELFM, the district assembly and general superintendent will usually join in affirming you to be ordained. The time of the ordination service will be announced well in advance of the district assembly.

A Highlight of Your Life

Your ordination service should be one of the great highlights of your life and ministry. You will want to note in your journal your feelings and the significant scriptures and comments made in the ordination sermon, and by those family and church friends who love you and helped you come to this most important moment in your ministry. Be generous in your expression of gratitude to them as the instruments of God in helping you fulfill His calling on your life!

Recognition of Minister's Orders

Ordained ministers from other denominations who wish to join ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES may do so if they meet all requirements for ordination as outlined in Manual paragraphs 225, 424, 428-.3, 429-.3, and 430-.2. There will also be an examination by the ELFM as to their conduct, personal experience, and doctrine. The candidate must demonstrate competency on (1) the ELFM Manual; (2) the history of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES; and (3) the doctrine of holiness. The ELFM will recommend ways to meet these three requirements satisfactorily.

After Ordination, Then What?

The candidacy process is so intense and takes so long it often seems it will never end. There can be a sense of let-down after ordination. There can also be a temptation to assume the hard parts are all over. Since ordination is a lifetime action of the church, there will be no more interviews every year with the ELFM. You will no longer fill out an annual application for renewal of district license, but you are expected to report annually to the district assembly where your membership is held (Manual 433.9).

However, this does not mean you can now coast through ministry without evaluation and accountability. If you were considered worthy to be ordained, the church now expects you to demonstrate leadership in the church. You should have built the patterns of accountability and self-evaluation into the very fabric of your ministerial being. You will want to continue in an accountability or spiritual formation group. You will want to continue to read and study the faith you proclaim. If you fulfill your ministry faithfully, perhaps you will be asked to serve as a mentor of a candidate or on the ELFM or ELFM. You will have ample opportunity to share what you have learned in your candidacy journey with others who come behind you. May they find you faithful!

Stage Four: Lifelong Learning

Commitment to Excellence

At this stage of the journey, you have reached a very important part of your ministry. The last district assembly included one of the highlights of your ministry, your ordination. You met the educational requirements. You completed the candidacy requirements, and your official ordination certificate has arrived in the mail. Ordained! You finally made it! You might think you have arrived at the end of your journey and no more study or accountability will be required. Satan would like for you to think that way. You may even know some ministers who have said something like this to you. But God and the church have a better way! It is called Lifelong Learning.

God's call to excellence in ministry requires a lifetime of study and learning. Though the Bible remains constant, methods of understanding and communicating it are constantly changing. The theology of church changes very little, if at all, in a person's lifetime, but different emphases arise to meet the needs of a changing culture. New ways of expressing theological truth may appear. The practical knowledge of ministry is always developing. One has never learned enough about human beings and their needs. To be a good steward of the ministry to which God has called you will require lifelong learning.

It's a Matter of Integrity

Ordination is a lifetime credential. It is based on spiritual and theological truths, making it different from the credential assumptions of many other professions like education or medicine. Spiritual integrity, rather than acquisition of knowledge, lies at the heart of ordination. Therefore, unlike teachers, doctors, or nurses, you are not required to take so many courses per year to have your elder or deacon order renewed. However, failure to continue your study will lessen both the spiritual integrity and the knowledge you bring to the task of ministry.

ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES understands lifelong learning to be a vital part of the spiritual and professional stewardship of its ordained ministry. Our love for those to whom we minister demands that we become the best we can be in knowledge, skills, and practice. We love our brothers and sisters in ministry so much that we want them and ourselves to minister out of wholeness, love, meaning, and fulfillment. Lifelong learning offers us the opportunity by which we can help them and ourselves minister with energy and effectiveness throughout life.

The church's mission in America also makes lifelong learning critical. Our ministry will no longer be carried out in the comfort of a Christian nation. Wherever God calls you to serve, you will be a missionary of the gospel. The changing patterns of culture require constant updating of both knowledge and skills, if we are to establish outposts of the kingdom of God on earth. The very nature of the church's mission calls for lifelong learning.

Learning Opportunities

The minister's responsibility for education does not conclude with graduation from the course of study. It is the responsibility of the minister, with the encouragement and support of the local church, to fulfill the expectation for lifelong learning (Manual 129.9-10, 413.25-26). A minimum yearly expectation is two accredited Continuing Education Units, or CEUs (Manual 424.6, 433.15).

Many programs which would qualify for continuing education are offered by our ELFM colleges and universities, the seminary, our districts, and various divisions of the general church, even local hospitals and mental health organizations, or Para-church organizations. Every serious minister will want to inquire into these opportunities for further training.

The yearly Pastor's Report Form requests information from every minister regarding his or her involvement in continuing education. The ELFM is charged with the task of nurturing these programs on the district level.

Nourishing Your Own Soul

While you are continuing to read and study and grow as part of your ongoing professional development, you will also want to take steps to nourish and care for your own soul. You need to develop good habits about taking a day off, keeping the Sabbath (which, for you, may NOT be Sunday), finding a recreational hobby, investing time with your family, etc. Hopefully you will learn early in your ministry the value of having a faithful accountability partner with whom you can talk freely about your struggles and frustrations. Many pastors today have discovered the wisdom of finding a professional counselor or therapist they can go to for both personal and professional advice.

Although you have a servant's heart and look for ways to give your life away for Jesus, you need to develop the mature wisdom that knows one of the key elements in caring for the souls of others is caring for your own soul.

Reaching the Destination

Throughout this Handbook we have used the metaphor of journey to describe your ongoing process of growth and development in ministry. But of course, the chief weakness of our metaphor is that in ministry, we never reach the destination of complete knowledge in this lifetime. Some of the older ministers you love best are still studying and learning even in their retirement. They embody the vision of lifelong learning. It is our hope that when you come to the age of retirement, you will be growing and learning more about life, ministry, and the gospel of Christ. The more we learn here the easier will be the transition when we finally graduate from this life and can sit at the feet of the Master Teacher for eternity! Until then, enjoy the journey of lifelong learning! Remember, you always have a "great cloud of witnesses" walking the road ahead of you and cheering you on!

My Ministry Role Form F-3

If you are confident of the ministry role to which you are called, write a description of that role, how you received confirmation of the call, and how you see yourself fitting into that role.

If you are unclear about your ministry role, which ministry role is most appealing to you? Why? How do you see yourself fitting into that role?

Form F-4 Developing a Philosophy of Ministry: Ministry Activities

In the future many people will ask you in one way or another to describe your philosophy of ministry. Essentially this means what is ministry, what is the relationship of the minister to his or her ministry assignment, and why does the minister does what he or she does? Several forms in this section will help you to begin developing a statement about your philosophy of ministry by exploring how you view ministry and your role within ministry.

Recognize that as you study ministry and your ministry experience increases, you will develop a more complete understanding of why you do what you do and the relationships and responsibilities of ministry. Because your understanding will change you may find it valuable to re-visit these activities at least once a year to clarify and update your philosophy of ministry.

Step 1: Ministry Activities

List 3 to 5 activities of a minister you have observed. How do you see yourself performing these activities on an on-going basis? Prioritize these activities by numbering the most important activity as 1, the next most important as 2, etc.

Gifts and Graces Form F-5

How do I rate myself in each of the areas listed in Stage One, page 6? What are my strong points? What areas have shown growth since the last review? What areas need growth? Ask for God's help in these areas.

Church Constitution and Form F-6 Covenant of Christian Character

Read Manual 1-41. Summarize the doctrines and standards. Which are most distinctive and important to me? List any question or area of disagreement. Meet with pastor/mentor/adviser to discuss these points.

Local Minister's License Form F-7

What do I need to do to obtain a local minister's license? When am I scheduled to talk with the pastor? What happened in that interview? When do I meet with the church board? What were the significant events and conversations in that meeting? How do I feel about these events? Make note of the events surrounding your local covenant service.

Form F-8 Developing a Philosophy of Ministry: Ministry Activities and Congregational Health

In the future many people will ask you in one way or another to describe your philosophy of ministry. Essentially this means what is ministry, what is the relationship of the minister to his or her ministry assignment, and why does the minister does what he or she does? Several forms in this section will help you to begin developing a statement about your philosophy of ministry by exploring how you view ministry and your role within ministry.

Recognize that as you study ministry and your ministry experience increases, you will develop a more complete understanding of why you do what you do and the relationships and responsibilities of ministry. Because your understanding will change you may find it valuable to re-visit these activities at least once a year to clarify and update your philosophy of ministry.

Step 2: Ministry Activities and Congregational Health

Describe how each of the minister's activities on Form F-3 is related to each of the other activities. Describe how each activity contributes to the health of a local congregation.

Form F-9 Developing a Philosophy of Ministry: Relationship of the Minister to Ministry

In the future many people will ask you in one way or another to describe your philosophy of ministry. Essentially this means what is ministry, what is the relationship of the minister to his or her ministry assignment, and why does the minister does what he or she does? Several forms in this section will help you to begin developing a statement about your philosophy of ministry by exploring how you view ministry and your role within ministry.

Recognize that as you study ministry and your ministry experience increases, you will develop a more complete understanding of why you do what you do and the relationships and responsibilities of ministry. Because your understanding will change you may find it valuable to re-visit these activities at least once a year to clarify and update your philosophy of ministry.

Step 3: Relationship of the Ministry to Ministry

Describe the relationship of the minister to the local congregation. If you are being called to a specialized area of ministry—youth, children, compassionate ministry—describe the relationship and responsibility of the minister to the specific group to which you will minister.

District Minister's License Form F-10

What do I need to do to obtain a district minister's license? When am I scheduled to meet with the district officials? What happened in that interview? What were the significant events and conversations in that meeting? How do I feel about these events? Make note of the events surrounding your local covenant service when you received your district license.

Interview with Form F-11 District Ministerial Studies Board

Summarize your meeting(s) with the District Ministerial Studies Board and your feelings about the issues discussed.

Interview with Form F-12 District Ministerial Credentials Board

Summarize your meeting(s) with the District Ministerial Credentials Board and your feelings about the issues discussed.

Appendix 1: Ministry Specialties

THE CERTIFICATE OF LAY MINISTRY

A place of significant ministry, which is not a part of the ordination track, is the Certificate of Lay Ministry. In ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES we believe all Christians should consider themselves ministers of Christ and seek to know the will of God concerning their appropriate avenues of service. A layperson who feels called to serve in essential roles of ministry on behalf of the local church, but who does not feel a primary call to become an ordained minister, may pursue a Certificate of Lay Ministry from their local church board (Manual 402.1).

Obtaining a Certificate of Lay Ministry

Any member of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES who feels called of God to fulfill a specialized ministry as a layperson, but does not necessarily profess a call to preach or to full-time ministry may receive a Certificate of Lay Ministry from the local church board. Application for a Lay Ministry Certificate is contingent upon the recommendation of the pastor and a commitment to complete one-fourth of a validated course of study in the Elder track or its equivalent as outlined in the Continuing Lay Training Curriculum catalog and a program of study in a ministry specialty from Continuing Lay Training.

EDUCATIONAL PREPARATION FOR MINISTRY AS CLERGY

Regardless of the specific category or role of ministry God is placing on your heart, you will need to complete an educational program that helps you acquire the knowledge and skills needed to minister effectively in your special area. Preparing for any of the various ministry roles requires the same biblical, theological, doctrinal, and practical foundation. Unique skills needed for each specialty may be acquired through additional study beyond the biblical and theological foundational core.

A sampling of possible ministry roles as clergy is described below. Whatever ministry role you are seeking, and regardless of the educational provider you choose, your course of study will be supervised by your ELFM. A more complete description of the educational preparation for ministry is found in Stage Two of this Handbook.

ADMINISTRATION

We live in a society with a strong consumer mindset. Consequently, the operations of the local church and certain other church-affiliated entities are held to a high standard in the area of administration and organization. As a result, many larger, local churches and other church-affiliated entities are finding it necessary to employ an individual whose sole or main task is to be the administrator of the organization.

Administration may take various forms, ranging from Business Administrator (which is similar to a Chief Operating Officer for the organization) or Executive Pastor (who may have more responsibility for ministry staff coordination and less responsibility for the operations of the entity) of a local church, to an administrator of a ELFM college or university. Regardless of the specific title, the church acknowledges certain individuals who may be called specifically to use their administrative gifting in service to the church. Therefore, ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES has a course of study to assist in preparing and resourcing these individuals for service. Whether such an individual pursues the elder or deacon track is dependent on the specific role to be filled by such an individual.

Becoming a Minister of Administration

In addition to the biblical and theological core, the minimum requirements for service of this nature should include coursework in management and business law, as well as an understanding of financial management and the ability to read and understand financial statements effectively.

MINISTRY

Ministers provide comfort and spiritual care for people beyond the walls of the traditional church. Ministers take many forms to include hospital, hospice, military, corrections, workplace, college campus, and counseling. As a group, they are some of the church's most effective evangelists and WORLD ministers.

Becoming a Minister

Educational preparation for Ministers requires the same biblical and theological foundation as other roles of ministry. Additionally, special skills aid the chaplain in addressing the needs of people beyond the traditional church setting. ELFM Theological Seminary and partners provides a specialized track for those pursuing Ministers; the Modular Course of Study offers chaplain training in both core and elective components. All three branches of the military (Army, Air Force, and Navy) have a candidate program for seminarians with plans for service as a military chaplain.

Those called to be hospital, nursing home, hospice, correctional, and workplace Ministers may not be called specifically to a preaching ministry, but for the most part, will need elder's orders to compete effectively for chaplain positions. The Chaplain Advisory Council must interview and endorse all prospective Ministers who desire to minister full-time in any form of Ministers. Those called to Ministers in the military must also be interviewed by a general superintendent.

CHILDREN'S MINISTRY

Ministry to children is recognized as increasingly important. The children's minister provides the full complement of pastoral leadership to children in their various contexts (e.g., family, school, and community). While the children's minister serves directly with children and their families, he or she must also develop a support system of other spiritually strong adults and students who provide leadership in worship, discipleship, fellowship, mission, and evangelism.

Becoming a Children's Minister

Persons interested in becoming a minister to children should seek significant ministry experiences by actively participating in the children's ministry of the local church. They should prepare themselves by studying the core biblical and theological foundations, and practical theology. More contextualized studies in child development, child sociology, and the practice of children's ministry will be required. All ELFM colleges and universities, as well as ELFM Theological Seminary, have specialized courses of study in children's ministry.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Ministers of Christian education provide leadership for discipleship ministries in the local church or Christian educational agencies in the community. The minister leads the effort in organizing effective educational programs, developing appropriate curriculum, and equipping laypersons for leadership, teaching, and discipleship. These education programs include traditional ministries like discipleship training, Sunday School, and Vacation Bible School, but also may include small-group ministries (e.g., Bible study, spiritual formation, or support groups), gender- or age-specific ministries, and weekday Christian education.

Becoming a Minister of Christian Education

If God is calling you to ministry in Christian Education or to an age-specific group, such as children, youth, or adults, you will be exploring core biblical studies, theological foundations, pastoral theology, and educational theory during your educational preparation. More specialized study in the area of human development, teaching, educational administration, curriculum development, and leadership is also required. All ELFM colleges and universities, as well as ELFM Theological Seminary have specialized majors or degrees in Christian education.

COMMUNITY MINISTRIES

God may be leading you into community ministries. Community ministries include, but are not limited to, relieving human suffering through disaster relief, community development, ministering to the sick and needy, or comforting the sorrowing. Ministers in compassionate ministries provide services to local congregations and communities through local programs and focused compassionate ministry centers.

EDUCATOR

An elder, deacon, or licensed minister who is an educator employed to serve on the administrative staff or faculty of one of the educational institutions of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES may be declared an educator by the district for his or her ministry assignment.

Becoming an Educator

The educator must first complete a validated course of study under the direction of the ELFM and then seek employment by an educational institution of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES. Others, after being employed as an educator, choose to complete the course of study and apply to their district for ordination as a deacon with a ministry assignment as an educator.

EVANGELIST

An evangelist is a district-licensed minister with a desire to pursue evangelism as his or her primary ministry. He or she is devoted to traveling and preaching the gospel, and authorized by the church to promote revivals (Manual 408).

Becoming an Evangelist

An educational program to prepare evangelists contains the same biblical, theological, and doctrinal foundation as other ministry specialties. A strong emphasis in preaching and soul winning is encouraged. Your ELFM will help determine your course of study. If interested in being recognized as an evangelist, contact your district superintendent or Revivalism Ministries for instructions and requirements for the field of evangelism. Either will be able to answer your questions and concerns.

MISSIONARY

The missionary is a member of the clergy or a layperson with a special call to work with people from a different culture than their own. Missionaries are appointed by the General Board to minister for the church through the World Mission/Evangelism Department or USA/Canada Mission/Evangelism Department.

Becoming a Missionary

Preparing to be a missionary requires the same core biblical, theological, and doctrinal foundation as other ministries. Additional study in cross-cultural ministry and languages may be required. All missionaries in ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES are thoroughly reviewed by the World Mission/Evangelism Department. Contact them for requirements and applications.

MUSIC

Persons called to a special music ministry may qualify for a commission as a minister of music. Such a commission is voted by the District Assembly upon recommendation of the ELFM, and consists of a certificate signed by the district superintendent and the district secretary. It is valid for one year only. All ministers of music are expected to report to the District Assembly from which they received their commissions. (See Manual 410-.1, for details.)

Becoming a Minister of Music

Educational preparation for a minister of music includes the core biblical, theological, and doctrinal foundations of all ministers. Additionally, the minister of music must obtain at least one year of vocal study under an accredited teacher, have one year of experience in music ministry, be serving as a minister of music in a ELFM church, and be recommended for licensing to the district by the local church board (Manual 410).

PASTOR

A pastor is a minister who, under the call of God and His people, has the oversight of a local church. The duties of a pastor are outlined in Manual 412-419. Some of the duties include preaching the Word, equipping the saints for the work of ministry, administering sacraments, and pastoral care of the congregation. The pastor oversees all departments of local church work.

Becoming a Pastor

Pastors must complete the elder track in a validated course of study. This track includes core biblical, theological, and doctrinal foundations and practical theology of pastoral ministry. Preaching ministry is given special emphasis.

PSALMIST

A song evangelist is a member of ETERNAL LIFE FELLOWSHIP MINISTRIES whose intention is to devote the major portion of his or her time to the ministry of evangelism through music. The song evangelist ministers in revivals and campaigns as opportunity affords.

Becoming a Psalmist

Song evangelist is not a recognized ordination credential. Some song evangelists have sought recognition as registered or commissioned. If you anticipate working as a song evangelist and are seeking ordination credentials, see the "evangelist" section for information on preparing for ordination.

YOUTH MINISTRY

Youth ministry is becoming an increasingly important part of the local church's ministry to the congregation and community. The youth minister provides the full complement of pastoral leadership to adolescents in their various contexts (e.g., family, school, and community). While the youth minister serves directly with youth, he or she must also develop a support system of other spiritually strong adults and students who provide leadership in worship, discipleship, fellowship, mission, and evangelism. The youth minister will also work with parents to facilitate personal, social, and spiritual understanding between youth and parents during this critical time.

Becoming a Minister to Youth

Persons interested in becoming a minister to youth should seek significant ministry experiences by participating actively in the youth ministry of the local church. They should prepare themselves by studying the core biblical and theological foundations, and practical theology. More contextualized studies in adolescent development, adolescent sociology, and the practice of youth ministry will be required. All ELFM colleges and universities, as well as ELFM Theological Seminary, have specialized courses of study in youth ministry.

The ELFM Minister "Be, Know, Do"

Breckenridge Conferences

Several years ago a significant number of ELFM leaders met together for a week each summer in Breckenridge, CO to pray, think, and talk about our expectations for ELFM ministers. Two major documents were produced out of these discussions: 1) the curriculum categories of Content, Competency, Character and Context (Manual 424.3, also known as the 4 Cs) as well as the "Ability Statements" found in Stage Two, and 2) the "Be, Know, Do Statements" found on the following pages. These basic descriptions reflect the collective thinking of our ELFM leaders as to the core issues at stake for all ELFM ministers.

TRANSCRIPTS

Copies of Transcripts

Use this section of your notebook to file copies of your transcripts. This will be a ready reference should questions arise.

Transfer of Transcripts

In your yearly review with the ELFM, evidence must be provided of your studies and preparation for the ministry. In preparation for your interview, obtain an official* copy of your transcript from the Registrar's Office of your school. This must be requested in writing. The following details should be included:

- 1 Full name of student
- 2 Current address
- 3 Social Security number
- 4 Birth date
- 5 Years attended school
- 6 Where to send transcript
- 7 Your signature

Appendix 4: RÉSUMÉ

The first impression some will form of you may be from your résumé. This important document is a method to share important information about you personally and professionally.

To help you prepare your résumé, explore the many resources available— software packages, books, and résumé writing businesses. Some key items to include are:

- > Name
- > Current address, phone number, E-mail address
- > Educational background
