

When to stay, when to walk away and when to run!!

“In my last relationship I realized that my partner was self-centered, self-serving, arrogant, ignorant, unfaithful, hypercritical, abusive, an under-achiever and an alcoholic. I was devastated when he broke up with me.” www.TigressLuv.com

Problem relationships are like taking a ride in an elevator—whatever floor you entered, you get to decide how far you descend before you seek help or get off.

What is your bottom line— your relationship deal breaker?

When to stay, when to walk away, and when to run! The quiz on the next page helps you decide.

Relationships: When to stay, when to walk away, and when to run!

"I'm not upset that you lied to me, I'm upset that from now on I can't believe you."

*Friedrich Nietzsche

*Derivation of a quote from Beyond Good and Evil. "Not that you lied to me but that I no longer believe you has shaken me."

How do you know when it's time to end a relationship?

Never betray your own better judgment or your values. End a relationship before you compromise your self-respect or physical safety. There are four conditions when most psychologists and clergy agree that ending a relationship may be the right action. The four conditions are known as the "Four A's":

1. Abandonment (The partner left and is not coming back).
2. Addiction (Especially if children need protection).
3. Abuse (Especially physical abuse or if children need protection).
4. Adultery (Ending the relationship is an option, not a requirement).

Relationship problems unrelated to the "4 A's" require deeper investigation. Ending committed relationships simply because one or both partners' "fell out of love," "got bored" or "grew apart" leaves each partner at risk of regrets or of repeating the same mistakes in future relationships.

Before you walk away, answer the following 8 questions:

- *Yes No 1. Is this relationship harmful or dangerous to me or to my children?
- Yes No. 2. If I had a son, daughter or best friend in a relationship exactly like mine, would I advise ending the relationship?
