Wrongful Termination & Trade Secrets

At Business Interruption Consulting, we offer specialized forensic accounting services for wrongful termination and trade secrets cases. Our team provides expert financial analysis and reporting to assess the economic damages resulting from wrongful termination claims. This includes calculating lost wages, benefits, and any potential future earnings that may have been affected by the termination. We work closely with legal teams to deliver clear, comprehensive financial documentation that supports the case and helps quantify the monetary impact of the wrongful termination.

In trade secrets cases, we provide thorough analysis to determine the financial consequences of intellectual property theft or misuse. Our experts evaluate the extent of the economic loss caused by the misappropriation of proprietary information, including lost profits, diminished market share, and the cost of remedying the breach. By applying forensic accounting techniques, we can present detailed findings that help clarify the financial damage done to the business and its intellectual assets.

With our deep expertise in both wrongful termination and trade secrets cases, we act as a crucial partner to legal teams, providing the financial expertise needed to build a strong, fact-based case. Our goal is to deliver clear, reliable financial insights that assist in achieving favorable outcomes for our clients, whether through settlements, mediation, or court proceedings.
