Mark your calendars! It's that time of year again when you get to catch up with your old collie friends, meet new friends, enjoy our auction and raffle and partake in an excellent pot luck lunch. NEOCR master chefs will provide grilled hot dogs and all the fixings. Attendees are asked to bring a dish or beverage to share. There are some electrical outlets available for those who want to bring a slow cooker casserole.

We are accepting items for the silent auction. Suggested donations are gift cards or gift certificates, themed gift baskets, collie memorabilia, framed prints, hand-made crafts or doggy accessories. If you need letterhead receipt to give to vendors for tax purposes, please contact Treasurer Leo Kenzik at kenzik1@windstream.net.

If you have items to donate, please contact Marian at msmask2@att.net or Betty at hodgsonbl@yahoo.com. This will allow us to prepare bid sheets for the auction. Please be sure to include "Collie Picnic" in your subject line. Auction items may be brought with you the day of the picnic. If donations are not arranged in advanced, you will be asked to fill out bid sheet(s) for your item(s). We will need a description of your items along with an opening bid so we can organize the bidding process.

In Review – By Tom Hoadley

This will be our last newsletter before the annual reunion and picnic. We hope to see ALL of you there. This year, the event will be a little more low-key, with less emphasis on fund-raising, and more on food and fellowship. We will still have a silent auction (bring anything you'd like to sell to raise funds for rescue), and we will do a 50/50 raffle as well; but mostly we plan to just enjoy the day (Betty assures me the weather will be perfect) and the company of friends, both two- and four-footed.

Never fear, though. This year's final newsletter will give you a chance to make that end-of-year donation in time to claim your tax deduction and help defray some of our higher-than-normal vet expenses for the year (i.e., two heart murmur girls within months of each other, our first in 20+ years) and bring our treasury back up to strength.

We are still working on updating our mailing list. Our goal is to save on printing and postage costs while still staying in touch with those of you who want to stay in the loop with all-things rescue. The response to our initial effort was quite disappointing. Thanks to those of you who responded to our appeal, either updating or confirming your contact preferences. I will be very sad if the lack of response means that most of you no longer wish to keep in touch. Your support and friendship through the years has meant so much to NEOCR; so please, let us know, at your earliest opportunity, your mailing list and contact preferences. The collies don't want to miss a single friend.

The next issue of Imprints will also include a call for nominations for officers and board in the coming year. We already know you love collies, so if you have time and would like to become more involved in guiding collie rescue, please think about throwing your hat in the ring. The time commitment is really very reasonable, with only a few meetings per year, and some email discussions in the interim. So please don't be shy.

Lastly, as always, thanks to all of you who have helped us in the past year, whether through your generous donations, by adopting a dog, or giving of your time and energy transporting, fostering, reviewing applications and evaluating dog/home matches, maintaining the website and our Facebook® presence and, of course, making this newsletter happen, whether by editing and composing, stapling and folding, or addressing and stamping. Your efforts make it possible for collies in need to have a happy-ever-after life.

Max: The Dog of a Lifetime – By Ann Naugle

Max was rescued eight years ago through Northeast Ohio Collie Rescue. I was told he was a stud dog, lived outside in a muddy back yard his whole life and didn't know what a bed was. The night we brought him home, he crawled into bed with me and we slept back to back for nine solid hours. We were instant soulmates. He loved everyone, wanted to meet new people and dogs, and if a dog didn't like him, he would take a big detour. He lived a charmed life—a long walk in the woods most days, neighbors who loved him, a collie buddy, kitties who loved and trusted him, a beach to hang out at all summer and kisses and hugs from me everyday.

Max died peacefully the night of August 9. Like the night we brought him home, we slept back to back. He passed away peacefully in the very early morning. I asked him to give me his spirit as he was the most beautiful soul. Thank you, NEOCR, for the dog of a lifetime.

For My Collie and Me

– By Alan Spevak

Some are sable, mahogany and gold; these we like to keep close and hold.
Some are white like the pure driven snow; these, too, we like to know.
Others are black as midnight can be, with a ring of white for all to see.
For my collie and me, it has to be.

It is these three we all hold dear to our hearts, the young and old ones never to part.
With long flowing hair and manes of white, the collie will always be just right.
Running in a field or by your side, its love and dedication it will never hide.

Its mission is pure, its love is true; they only want one thing—to make you laugh and never be blue.
They wait for us to come home from work, so they can greet you at the door, it's true it worked.
You are glad to see them as you pet them all, they seem so happy they all stand tall.
They give you a minute to sit and rest, and then they put you to the test.
It's time to play, to run and romp; let's have some fun, no time to stop.
For my collie and me, it has to be.

When the day is done and the night has fallen, their head they lay on feet that are swollen.
They give a sigh and drift off to sleep, lying at or near our feet.
They dream of fun and play and waiting for you, just to make your day and hope you won't be blue.
The night it beckons, the day is done; sleep now my friend for night has come.

With the light of day and a new beginning, we will wake together and continue living.
For my collie and me, it has to be; for my collie and me, it's true love don't you see.
Our time apart is really not long, and soon I will be home and we will play our love song.
Once again they'll wait for your day to end, so they can greet you their only true friend.
And so the story goes each day of our lives, our friend will wait to be side by side.
Soon we will be together again, my confidant, my collie, my pal, to the end you must see.
For my collie and me, it has to be.
