"Soulful Perspectives And Creative Expression"
By Munther Shah

Bilalians have expressed a tradition of music that has had an outstanding influence on the American culture that cannot be overlooked. However so diligent and dedicated to human excellence this characteristic sound is, its effectiveness has been nullified or undermined with vulgar displays of luck immorality. Its performance is most times if not always associated with the smoke filled atmosphere of taverns, lounges, or night clubs.

When ever the exceptional outlets are made available the prices at these locations are too high, there are bad acoustics, and the people are packed into an over crowded area, which makes it quite difficult or nearly impossible for enjoyment.

There is a desperate need for the Bilalian Musician to break the gravitational pull of a negative stigma that causes us to rotate around a degenerative vicious circle . . . from extreme emotionalism, to lust, to intoxication, to self-destruction and extreme depression.

Our natural rhythm has been corrupted perverted, and prostituted for too long.

Though we have achieved integration into Western society's cultural history our contributions seem to be of an inferior character classified in the category of jazz (jazz) which is looked down upon as "art" music that requires no knowledge or intelligence. Yet this very musical expression of the Bilalian Experience is without a doubt a Creative Art requiring not only intelligence and ability but sensitivity and Soul beyond Western Caucasian mentalities limited comprehension. Evidence of this profound fact can be observed from the impact made on modern music within the last fifty years.

The "Blues" and Bilalian Spirituals have become a noticable ear mark inseparable with the American Heritage.
