

OLGA TAMARA CV:

Olga Tamara entered the world of acting after she resigned as a dancer from the Australian Ballet Company in 1976. Having travelled the world and dancing with the likes of Rudolf Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn, she resigned to concentrate on her love of acting. Olga's first role in "Glenview High" won her an ABC TV Penguin award for "Best New Talent" in 1978.

She continued to appear in numerous television series carving out a successful acting career in regular roles in long running television series Cop Shop and Holiday Island and guest roles in Chopper Squad, Young Doctors, Paradise Village to name a few. Olga also appeared in lead roles in Wild Ass Of A Man alongside Max Gilles and the stage Musical Best Little Whorehouse in Texas, The Shifting Heart, Waiting for Rupert Murdoch and Morning Sacrifice to name a few.

Olga studied at Hays Gordon Theatre and The Ensemble in the 60's private coaching in the 70's and now regularly attends acting workshops and short courses including online scene workshops with Kim Farrant and continues to work on her love of directing stage works.
