Client Corner— NFL Player hosts Third Annual Summer Activity

Intercepting Our Youth is a non-profit organization founded by NFL defensive back and return specialist, Jimmy Williams of the Seattle Seahawks. The vision of the foundation is to motivate youth to "dream big" through the implementation of programs designed to help them develop the skills needed to achieve their dreams.

The Intercepting Our Youth Foundation hosted its 3rd Annual Summer Activity from June 30— July 1, 2006 in Baton Rouge, LA. The IOYouth football camp has been a fun and exciting activity for the past two years and has served as the foundation's featured summer activity. This summer, IOYouth introduced "Jimmy Cares", a two day summer activity that included both girls and boys. The program hosted a variety of activities geared towards healthy eating, fitness, conflict resolution, and math and science skills. Professional athletes from various NFL teams, such as Mike Rumph of the San Francisco 49ers and Mewelde Moore of the Minnesota Vikings, served as mentors to foster teamwork and self-confidence during activity periods, and were also on hand for a fun game of flag football.

"We all owe youth an opportunity to be intercepted from some of the tough challenges faced during adolescence." -Jimmy Williams

INTERCEPTING OUR YOUTH

Kimberly Haynes, CEO of OMBI Group, LLC, Lydell Key, football coach, James Jordan of the Kansas City Brigade Arena Football League, Brittany Sanders, OMBI Group, LLC intern and Mike Rumph of the San Francisco 49ers take a break from mentoring the kids of Jimmy Cares to catch a quick photo op. Key and Rumph have been active with the Jimmy Cares Summer Activity since its inception, and Jordan came on last year.

Taking the time out to show youth that one cares is essential in their development into responsible and intelligent adults. A group of future doctors, engineers and athletes listen attentively as Jimmy Williams speaks on the importance of teamwork, sportsmanship and self-respect.
