Local NFL Player Hosts Football Camp Next Saturday in Baton Rouge

April 16, 2009

Local NFL Player Mewelde Moore of the Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers will host his annual football camp for local youth next Saturday, April 25, 9am-2:30pm at Belaire High School. Guest NFL players that will attend the camp to help teach football skills will include Matt Forte of the Chicago Bears, Justin Vincent of the Pittsburgh Steelers, Michael Clayton of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Randal Gay of the New Orleans Saints and Spencer Johnson of the Buffalo Bills.

This annual camp is made possible by Mewelde Moore's Knowledge First Foundation, which was created to positively impact youth and underprivileged kids in the Baton Rouge area while providing them with resources to achieve their greatest potential in education and sports. The youth will get T-shirts, participate in NFL like workouts, strength and physical skills, interact with NFL Players and gain insight from pro athletes.

"Kids are our future and after experiencing something like winning the Super Bowl, it really made me more determined to give back. The most important thing is to give back, especially to our youth, not just in words but by actions," says Moore who feels very strongly about empowering our youth.

The camp will be next Saturday, April 25, 2009 and registration will begin at 8:30am. The camp is FREE to youth boys ages 11-17 and is open to the public. The camp will be at Belaire High School located at 12121 Tams Drive, Baton Rouge, La 70815 from 9am-2:30pm

Anyone interested in signing up for the football camp can contact Kimberly Haynes at (678) 516-6998 while space is available.
