

Millie Griffiths, All at once, all feeling returned - I did a fast drawing of an abstract face and from there, my surrealist automatism style took off. Once completed I had my routined-discovering-a-title moment that would suit the piece. I spent time looking at it, reading into where the figure, having a cigarette gives off a sense of narrative. I found that the odd-looking figure appears isolated in an atmosphere that describes his intense emotion such as the shapes surrounding him in a form of motion. This alien-looking figure looks to be in a state of pure and sudden realisation. In this I found a story I could interpret from my piece - an alien who had lost all feeling and all at once all feeling returned.
