

Helping Hands Reentry Outreach Centers presents

I Believe in HOPE

Executive Summary

Helping Hands Reentry Outreach Centers is reimagining the way communities and the nation approach the issue of homelessness. Their data-driven, trauma-informed program has been creating meaningful change in Oregon communities for nearly two decades. Helping Hands currently operates 228 beds at eleven facilities in four counties—Clatsop, Lincoln, Tillamook, Yamhill. In 2020, they will more than double their impact, creating nearly 300 new beds at three facilities, including Bybee Lakes Hope Center in Portland, Oregon. The Hope Center in Multnomah County will serve as a model for rethinking homeless programs and rebuilding resiliency in our communities.

Helping Hands Major Projects Summary

Lincoln City

In 2019, Lincoln City leaders approached Helping Hands to expand their services in Lincoln County. In the largest financial commitment ever made to an outside entity, Lincoln City's City Council approved a vote to purchase a building and finance the renovation of a new, 60-bed transitional housing facility to support men, women, and children who are experiencing homelessness. Lincoln County has the highest rate of homeless K-12 students in the state of Oregon. This was taken into consideration in the design process, and plenty of family rooms are incorporated into the building plans to support the need. Construction is slated to begin in July, and Helping Hands aims to open the facility by the end of the year.

Tillamook County

Helping Hands acquired a historical naval command center in the Port of Tillamook Bay in 2015, and the facility has been operating at a capacity of 38 beds since initial renovations. A current capital project is underway to complete the second floor and nearly double the capacity to serve the Tillamook County community. As of June 2020, electrical and plumbing are done, and drywall is going up!

Bybee Lakes Hope Center, Portland

Formerly the site of Wapato Jail, Bybee Lakes Hope Center will provide up to 228 beds for transitional housing in Multnomah County.

Helping Hands has partnered with Portland real estate developer and philanthropist Jordan Schnitzer to transform the never-used correctional facility into a center for hope for Portland's vulnerable and growing homeless population. Bybee Lakes Hope Center will become a national model for data-driven, trauma-informed homeless reentry, changing the way we and our elected officials think about homelessness in our communities. Supporters have spoken—in just five months of fundraising, Helping Hands has raised over $4 million, enough to renovate the facility and support operations for the first two years. Community partners have lined up to support the Hope Center, allowing Helping Hands to offer everything from onsite wraparound services and healthcare for program participants to intensive vocational training.
