NCPACA Scholarship Application Guide to writing the Personal Essay

The NCPACA Selection Committee is intent on granting these scholarship awards to candidates who demonstrate a resolute attempt to join the accounting profession in the truest sense of the word. Your writing this essay is your chance to set yourself apart from other candidates in that your written statement would reflect your unique personal character and your ability to articulate your ambition in your own words. To help you understand the essence of the essay topics, we have prepared this brief guide.

1st Topic – Why I want to be a CPA and how I plan to become a Licensed CPA

There is a difference between merely passing the CPA exams and becoming a duly licensed CPA. We want you to someday reach that stage of your chosen career where you become licensed. Reaching this stage signifies the mark of a true professional in whom the public trust is vested. Your vista would focus on the public interest. On your word will people rely for guidance, especially with respect to the financial statements issued by entities with whom you are associated. How do you plan to reach this stage?

Of what importance is this responsibility to you? Why this is a worthwhile personal goal to you? How do you see yourself participating in the world of commerce—where you could make a difference? Having set your sights on this stature, how will you get there?

Depending on your state, you could attain CPA licensure by simply passing the exams or, on top of it, undergoing a one or two-year experience requirement. It matters not what the technical requirements are. We are interested in the shaping of your moral character to become one of AICPA's own, and in your attaining the technical proficiency and competence required of a CPA. Express in your own words how you shall make yourself worthy of the CPA title, and your practical plans to reach this professional ideal.

2nd Topic – How I could reach other students to promote the CPA Profession

The question presupposes an understanding of the weight of responsibility of the CPA profession and your appreciation of its significance to the society that you serve. Having been convinced of its importance as a profession, you are expected to likewise tell others to become CPAs themselves. Whom will you tell? How will you tell them?

From a demographic standpoint, the accounting profession does need new blood to fill its ranks. You, having reached this stage of your thinking, are obviously aware of this need and would like to do your part in recruiting young students to the accountants' cause. How will you go about sharing what you know to raise future accountants like yourself?

For both personal essays, we highly recommend that you become familiar with the AICPA Code of Conduct. Your technical competence we shall consider a given. However, the essence of the profession is such that personal ethics do play a role in the development of one of society's highly prized titles – that of Certified Public Accountant. We wish you good luck in writing your personal essays. Thank you for your interest.
