

My Coca-Cola Santa Claus Cover

By Christopher William Anton Janson

This Coca-Cola Santa Claus cover started out as a sort of joke between my friends and my Uncle Terry somewhere between Thanksgiving and Christmas. And we joked about it so much, that I decided to make it a reality. And here's how I did that. Ho! Ho! Ho! Merry Christmas.

I started by searching the internet for pictures of the Coca-Cola Santa Claus, a weird colorful background, and adult coloring HO! HO! HO! MERRY CHRISTMAS Santa Claus page.

Now I could print out my Coca-Cola Santa Claus cachet onto my envelopes. Then I took the jolly old St. Nicholas Christmas Carol stamps and magically slapped them on my Coca-Cola Santa Claus envelopes.

I put my Coca-Cola Santa Claus envelopes into the magical box, and WHOOSH! off they went for a visit to Plymouth, Vermont to get canceled.

When I got my covers back on January 9, 2018 I wrote this AMAZING article and scanned the Coca-Cola Santa Claus covers into the computer. It's those magical Coca-Cola Santa Claus covers that you see here. I also gave my friends each one of my Coca-Cola Santa Claus covers.
