

ONE MONTH DOWN

One month into this thing. I predict at the two month mark we will have a winner.

My thanks and admiration go to my partner Bob for penning such a good weekly recap in my absence last week. If he hadn't mentioned it was him writing you may not have known it wasn't my effort. Well done Bob!

Nothing big got hit Monday through Thursday last week. A serious lack of 12's and 13's so far but on Friday Detroit hit the 13 much to Bev Liedler's delight.

Interesting that after last week we had a double digit tie at the top, one week later we have a solo leader. Keeping the good fortune in the family it's Bev's hubby Arnie that owns the pool leading Dodgers. Two numbers away from claiming the top prize. They do need the 13 still so we aren't conceding but we do like their chances.

13 teams, almost half, failed to check off a single box last week. More weeks like that will be coming. Be patient. And remember, two prizes are doled out in this pool so the second team getting all the numbers gets a prize too.

Unimportant information department: The scores 2 and 5 have been hit by all teams so if your team gets one of those scores the rest of the way 'ya don't need to grab your pen to check a box. The 4,3 and 1 will soon follow.

Have a great Memorial Day weekend whatever you do and next weeks recap and standings update may be delayed by a day depending on Bob's and my alcohol consumption.
