

EVERYONE'S GOT A CHANCE

I can't recall such a jammed up leaderboard this far into the pool. Makes it exciting.

For the whole week, only 10 numbers got hit and no team got more than one box checked off. Really tightened up the standings.

Cleveland nailed the 13 on Tuesday (only the 3rd team to do it so far) putting them 2 numbers away. A fist pump for Teresa Kelly. She only needs the 8 and 12 to win it.

The Phil's got the much needed shutout Tuesday giving Chris Reed some hope, in the mix at 2 spots away also.

The Brewers hit a 12 Friday to put them in a tie for the top, making Stu Silverstein's day.

And Toronto checked off box #7 for Frank Pisano. So he too is 2 spots away, needing both big numbers.

That makes for a 7 way tie for the lead going into week 7 and a whopping 13 teams are just 1 number behind those 7 so everyone's got a chance!

I'm sure ONE of these teams will find one of their needed numbers to make me put out an alert this week. Good Luck To All.

Talk real soon I think.
