

THE HITS JUST KEEP ON COMING

No slowing us down. Numbers continue to fly off the board.

Several teams (6) hit the 12 this week. Big week for high numbers of all kinds. Yankees are the first team to pull off the Trifecta of this pool. That being the 11, 12 and 13 — all in the bank for the Bombers. Now if they can get that pesky 0 taken care of, Matt Durocher will be going to Disneyland. Oh, they need a few other numbers as well, but the shutout will be the hardest.

Yikes! 17 for the Red Sox on Saturday. Scoring 10 - - that's right - 10 runs in the 9th inning. Could have stopped at 5 or 6 for Ken Demchak, but no such luck.

Two weeks in and though still very close, there are some favorites. The Cubs, Orioles and Reds, who checked off 5 different scores this week (most of any team), have the early lead with 10 scores each banked. Oh yes — names you like, Dan Hofstein, Mike Banha and Carl Borman own those teams in said order. Check in with you next week.
