

Subject: Re: Mr. Pratt.. ~~this would be a good company to try go buy your product ..~~
From: Karl Pratt <~~karl@...~~>
Date: Wed, 11 Mar 2009 03:22:33 -0700 (PDT)
To: Dawn Melancon <DawnMelancon@comcast.net>

Thanks Ron I appreciate that very much. Do you have any contact information? I wanted to give you some updates... I am getting ready to head down to Austin for the Safety meetings tomorrow at the State tomorrow. I am trying to get every thing necessary to get this through the Texas house. I am meeting with the DOT an DPS and also the Safety Board. It has gone completly crazy in the last few days here. When I woke up yesterday at 4 AM I had over 300 units prepared to ship I went to be last night at 11 I had only 43 left and we have now gotten inside some of the largest auto and truck dealerships in Dallas and FT Worth. I am looking at some extra safety equipment for our product lines. We are considering as you suggested in the Reflector Tape and also the locking safety hitch pin that will replace the existing ones that seem to have the problems. I have met with a couple manufactures regarding the hitch pins and we are in the first stages now of correcting this problem. We have found the solution and we are working very hard to put it in motion. I would appreciate the persons name that you were going to forward to me with 3M. I don't have a lot of time this morning but if you would give me a call early if possible it would be very appreciated.

Thanks,

Karl

----- Original Message -----

From: Dawn Melancon <DawnMelancon@comcast.net>

To: Karl Pratt <~~karl@...~~>

Sent: Wed, 11 Mar 2009 02:56:02 -0700 (PDT)

Subject: Mr. Pratt.. this would be a good company to try go buy your product...

Dear Mr. Pratt....

Company in the UK!!

If this company is suscessful... and they build a quality trailer then why not try to seek a partnership...

Outlaw homemade trailers.....

They will sell more trailers....

Then they can provide instructional tools to help and the trailers they produce can be fitted with the proper safety equipment.

Ron

Trailer maker Schmitz Cargobull upgrades UK facility 10/03/2009

Trailer manufacturer Schmitz Cargobull has announced a significant upgrade of its UK manufacturing operation together with the launch of several products new to the UK market. The developments at the company's Newcastle factory will see the introduction of what the it believes will be one of the world's most advanced multi-product trailer production lines. The new line will enable capacity at the plant to be increased significantly while the type of trailer models built in the UK will also grow.