

Globe Traveler

On a chilly September morning, Kyle and London were taking their routine morning walk. "Nothing ever happens around here in Huntington Beach" Kyle complained. "Yeah I agree" London agreed.

Just then something big was coming towards them. Both kids ran, but then it washed up on shore.

Kyle decided to go investigate and then London followed him. "It's a ship!" exclaimed Kyle. "Let's check it out" London said. Inside the ship they saw a lot of fishing supplies and wooden crates. And then Kyle found a circular box. It was a shiny box but it was falling apart. "Check this out" called Kyle. London went over and bent down to get a close look. "It looks like a game" she said. She got excited over the fact that it was a geography game. It said the words Globe Traveler on the front of the box. "Let's play it" said London. "Okay" Kyle agreed.

They opened the box and then they saw a game board with a picture of a globe on it and at the bottom of the box were some tokens and dice. They put their tokens on the space where is Huntington Beach and Kyle went first.

quickly looked for something to hide behind. They found a boulder the size of a large nightstand. They crouched behind it as the animals stampeded off. When they came out they found that something had trampled the dice. They hurriedly looked for the other dice. They found it behind a rock. London tried to roll but the flat dice wouldn't roll so they thought about it and then finally they hit it with a rock and it regained its shape. London rolled a "5" and a "1" everything spun again and they landed on a beach they thought they recognised suddenly it came to them, it was Huntington Beach. "I guess life here in Huntington Beach is pretty good" Kyle remarked. "Yeah" London agreed. Then they threw the game into the sea, and watched it sail out on the waves. In some distant land someone picked up the game and rolled the dice...