Letter from Doctors and Scientists to the European Medicines Agency regarding COVID-19 Vaccine Safety Concerns violation of the Nuremberg Code.

As physicians and scientists, we are supportive in principle of the use of new medical interventions which are appropriately developed and deployed, having obtained informed consent from the patient. This stance encompasses vaccines in the same way as therapeutics.

We note that a wide range of side effects is being reported following vaccination of previously healthy younger individuals with the gene-based COVID-19 vaccines. Moreover, there have been numerous media reports from around the world of care homes being struck by COVID-19 within days of vaccination of residents. While we recognise that these occurrences might, every one of them, have been unfortunate coincidences, we are concerned that there has been and there continues to be inadequate scrutiny of the possible causes of illness or death under these circumstances, and especially so in the absence of post-mortem examinations.

In particular, we question whether cardinal issues regarding the safety of the vaccines were adequately addressed prior to their approval by the European Medicines Agency (EMA).

As a matter of great urgency, we herewith request that the EMA provide us with responses to the following issues:

1. Following intramuscular injection, it must be expected that the gene-based vaccines will reach the bloodstream and disseminate throughout the body [1]. We request evidence that this possibility was excluded in pre-clinical animal models with all three vaccines prior to their approval for use in humans by the EMA.
2. If such evidence is not available, it must be expected that the vaccines will remain entrapped in the circulation and be taken up by endothelial cells. There is reason to assume that this will happen particularly at sites of slow blood flow, i.e. in small vessels and capillaries [2]. We request evidence that this probability was excluded in pre-clinical animal models with all three vaccines prior to their approval for use in humans by the EMA.
3. If such evidence is not available, it must be expected that during expression of the vaccines' nucleic acids, peptides derived from the spike protein will be presented via the MHC I - pathway at the luminal surface of the cells. Many healthy individuals have CD8-lymphocytes that recognize such peptides, which may be due to prior COVID infection, but also to cross-reactions with other types of Coronavirus [3; 4] [5]. We must assume that these lymphocytes will mount an attack on the respective cells. We request evidence that this probability was excluded in pre-clinical animal models with all three vaccines prior to their approval for use in humans by the EMA.

4. If such evidence is not available, it must be expected that endothelial damage with subsequent triggering of blood coagulation via platelet activation will ensue at countless sites throughout the body. We request evidence that this probability was excluded in pre-clinical animal models with all three vaccines prior to their approval for use in humans by the EMA.

5. If such evidence is not available, it must be expected that this will lead to a drop in platelet counts, appearance of D-dimers in the blood, and to myriad ischaemic lesions throughout the body including in the brain, spinal cord and heart. Bleeding disorders might occur in the wake of this novel type of DIC-syndrome including, amongst other possibilities, profuse bleedings and haemorrhagic stroke. We request evidence that all these possibilities were excluded in pre-clinical animal models with all three vaccines prior to their approval for use in humans by the EMA.

6. The SARS-CoV-2 spike protein binds to the ACE2 receptor on platelets, which results in their activation [6]. Thrombocytopenia has been reported in severe cases of SARS-CoV-2 infection [7]. Thrombocytopenia has also been reported in vaccinated individuals [8]. We request evidence that the potential danger of platelet activation that would also lead to disseminated intravascular coagulation (DIC) was excluded with all three vaccines prior to their approval for use in humans by the EMA.

7. The sweeping across the globe of SARS-CoV-2 created a pandemic of illness associated with many deaths. However, by the time of consideration for approval of the vaccines, the health systems of most countries were no longer under imminent threat of being overwhelmed because a growing proportion of the world had already been infected and the worst of the pandemic had already abated. Consequently, we demand conclusive evidence that an actual emergency existed at the time of the EMA granting Conditional Marketing Authorisation to the manufacturers of all three vaccines, to justify their approval for use in humans by the EMA, purportedly because of such an emergency. Video: Doctors and Scientists Write to European Medicines Agency (EMA)

Warning of COVID-19 Vaccine Dangers

Should all such evidence not be available, we demand that approval for use of the gene-based vaccines be withdrawn until all the above issues have been properly addressed by the exercise of due diligence by the EMA.

There are serious concerns, including but not confined to those outlined above, that the approval of the COVID-19 vaccines by the EMA was premature and reckless, and that the administration of the vaccines constituted and still does constitute "human experimentation", which was and still is in violation of the Nuremberg Code. In view of the urgency of the situation, we request that you reply to this email within seven days and address all our concerns substantively. Should you choose not to comply with this reasonable request, we will make this letter public.

Letter to Canadian Costco Executives for requirements to wear a face coverings as a violation of Human Rights

I understand that Costco Canada implemented a policy today whereby all Costco members in all communities nationwide are required to wear a face covering to access the warehouse. I am writing to express my strong objection to this policy for several reasons.

To impose a face covering upon every member as a condition of service is a significant infringement upon individual rights and freedoms, something that should be precious to every Canadian. Further, the use of a face covering is deemed a medical device. Costco has no legal or medical authority to impose medical interventions upon citizens. This is effectively practicing medicine without a license. Furthermore, in certain provinces like Ontario, the non-respecting of legal masking exemptions constitutes a provincial offence (Reg 364-20 section 2(4)(6) enacted October 3, 2020).

Health is under provincial jurisdiction in Canada and not the purview of individual businesses. In the absence of provincial legislation mandating masks in indoor spaces, the actions of Costco to indiscriminately impose such restrictions is not only inappropriate, it is unlawful. It appears Costco has made a unilateral decision independent and in spite of the laws or medical needs of each particular province or community.

Secondly, the science does not support universal mask wearing. A policy review paper published in Emerging Infectious Diseases in May 2020 - the Center for Disease Control and Prevention's journal - found no evidence to support universal mask wearing as a protective measure in non-health care settings. A recent meta-analysis and scientific review - which focused on randomized controlled studies rather than observational ones - found that, compared to no mask, mask wearing in the general population did not reduce influenza or influenza-like illness.

Canadian researcher, Dr. Denis Rancourt, Ph.D. conducted a thorough review of the scientific literature related to the use of face coverings. Dr Rancourt concluded: "No RCT (randomized clinical trial) study with verified outcome shows a benefit for . . . community members . . . to wearing a mask. There is no such study. There are no exceptions. Likewise, no study exists that shows a benefit from a broad policy to wear masks in public." There's no scientific evidence to support the popular idea that people wearing masks will reduce infection rates and save lives. Health officials and political leaders have assigned mask mandates a gravity unsupported by empirical research.

In addition to there being no scientific basis to support non-medical masks in preventing viral infection or transmission, there are known risks with prolonged cloth mask usage. A study published in the British Medical Journal in 2015 found the risk of infection with influenza-like illness was 13X higher in hospital workers using cloth masks compared to medical/surgical masks, and over 3X higher when compared to not wearing a mask at all. [1]

The World Health Organization declared that masks carry uncertainties and critical risk including increased risk of self-contamination due to the inappropriate use of the mask by the general public. A cursory observation of masked members and staff at Costco shows repeated touching, adjusting and removing of masks, all of which contributes to increased risk of contagion. A recent CDC analysis reveals 85% of patients testing positive for COVID-19 wore face masks "often" or "always" in the two weeks preceding their positive test.

I've been a Costco member for 28 years. I've appreciated Costco for its good customer service, selection of high quality products, and fair compensation of employees. I find this action completely out of character with the Costco I have known and admired for three decades.

What is becoming increasingly apparent is that an over-hyped pandemic narrative is creating unwarranted and unnecessary panic. Further, this panic is being used by governments and businesses to justify violations of the rights and freedoms that form the basis of our society, including our constitutional rights, sovereignty, privacy, rule of law, financial security, and even our very democracy. Mask mandates strip us of our individual sovereignty and humanity and fuels unwarranted panic.

With your previous policy on masking, Costco served as a bastion against the growing violation of our rights and freedoms. I appreciated Costco for respecting personal choice and supporting those who could not mask or preferred not to mask. With this new policy, Costco has clearly shifted from the values and principles that has been the basis of its success.

I have a number of questions I would appreciate answers to:

What does Costco hope to achieve by such policies?

How will the impact of such policies be measured?

How long will these restrictions/violations be in place?

Is it your intention to honour exemptions in provinces where legal exemptions exist?

Is it your intention to honour personal choice in provinces where there is no provincial mandate to mask?

If your intention is to not honour legal exemptions or conscious choice, what accommodation and/or compensation will be offered to members who are denied access to the warehouse, a benefit of membership?

Letter to school unions for requirements of children to wear a face coverings as a violation of Law

Parents have been using template letters, created by lawyers and circulated on social media, to tell schools that there is a "significant risk" that masks will cause children mental and physical harm and that putting children in danger in this way is "not justified" as well as "unlawful".

ASCL has sought legal advice and prepared its own letter for headteachers to send parents who say they object to pupils wearing masks in the classroom.

The letter says: "Wearing a face covering is one of the recommended measures schools are being asked to take to get the risk of infection to an acceptable level to enable them to remain open.

"As part of our risk assessment, the School has determined that wearing face coverings is an important measure that helps to mitigate the risk of spreading Covid 19 amongst pupils and staff, particularly in light of concerns expressed over new, more contagious variants that may have more resilience to the current vaccines in circulation."

"The School remains concerned that if face coverings are not made compulsory and/or a high percentage of pupils choose not to wear them, it could undermine the risk assessment and raise the risk of infection to the pupil or others in the school community."

Responding to the union's intervention, Molly Kingsley, co-founder of the parent campaign group UsForThem, said: "This is either non-binding guidance, in which case there should be no penalty for non-compliance, or it is mandatory in which case the Government needs to come out and own it."

Letter to Florida Governor DeSantis for student medical records database a violation of Privacy & Civil Rights

Dear Governor DeSantis: We are a coalition of 33 education, disability, privacy, and civil rights advocacy groups writing to highlight substantial risks arising from Florida's proposed school safety database. This project will collect information about children and young people's social media activity and other sensitive topics, and store it in a state database to be shared with state employees, schools, and law enforcement. We are deeply concerned that the program will be used to label students as threats based on data that has no documented link to violent behavior, such as data on disabilities or those seeking mental health care. We urge you to immediately halt the state's construction of this database and, instead, create a commission of parents, students, and experts on education, privacy, security, equity, disability rights, civil rights, and school safety, to identify measures that have been demonstrated to effectively identify and mitigate school safety threats. Education Week recently detailed the types of information to be collected in Florida's planned database. The categories discussed included children who have been victims of bullying based on protected statuses such as race, religion, disability, and sexual orientation; children who have been treated for substance abuse or undergone involuntary psychiatric assessments; and children who have been in foster care, among others. We believe this database represents a significant safety risk because it collects highly sensitive information without a clear, evidence-based rationale for inclusion, could be used to stigmatize and blame children who have been victims of bullying or whose only "risk" factor is their disability, and will create a de facto state repository designed to track children based on federally protected characteristics. This database is part of an alarming trend in Florida over the past year. Since the passage of the Marjory Stoneman Douglas School Safety Act in 2018, Florida has required schools and the state department of education to collect, store, and analyze increasingly sensitive information about students. For example, districts have been required to collect mental health information from students as a registration requirement for the new academic year. The state has provided no guidance on how to ensure the accuracy of this sensitive information, the information's value in the prevention of violence, or whether and how districts will dispose of the records. No evidence demonstrates that creating a massive digital surveillance infrastructure helps to prevent school violence. But studies do suggest that it may cause students to feel less safe at school. And without safeguards and protections, the state risks building a structure to systematically discriminate against students based on protected statuses. The proposed database will include students' social media posts, but as the Brennan Center for Justice reports, there is no proof that social media monitoring programs work. The Department of Homeland Security has been using this technology since 2016 and has not found it to be effective. Moreover, the algorithms used in these monitoring systems are susceptible to bias and will disproportionately impact students of color and students with disabilities. The database would cast an extremely wide net not just with respect to people but also with respect to the types of information collected and stored. According to Education Week's reporting, information that state agencies discussed including in the database were students':

- ?Experiences of bullying based on protected characteristics;
- ?Foster care records;
- ?Immunization records;
- ?Homelessness status;
- ?Social media posts
- ?Involuntary psychiatric exams;
- ?History of mental illness;
- ?Criminal records (including unverified reports of suspicious activity);
- ?History of substance abuse;
- ?Disciplinary records; and
- ?Feelings of anger and persecution.

These wide-ranging categories vary in their relevance to potential threatening behavior. It is unclear how immunization records, for example, will help educators determine whether students are likely to commit violent crimes at school. Furthermore, some information, such as students' feelings of anger or desire for revenge, is highly subjective and difficult to capture in a database. Depending on students' ages and circumstances, those feelings may be developmentally appropriate and have no bearing on the likelihood of violent behavior. Assessing the accuracy of this kind of information would be difficult at best and prone to error and bias, particularly in the case of students of color, who are far more likely to be perceived as aggressive or hostile than white students. Its use by state authorities would therefore be of questionable value. Moreover, collecting this information for school safety purposes will convey a damaging and stigmatizing message to educators, students and parents about students who fall within the targeted categories. We also believe that if the state collects and stores some of this information, many students and their families will be deterred from seeking the services they need in school. Students who are homeless or in the foster care system, or those who have mental health disabilities, may limit the services they use out of concern that the state may use the information to flag them as potential threats. Likewise, students who are bullied because they are LGBT, have a disability, or have a minority religious affiliation may choose not to report the abuse to their schools if they fear the schools will respond by identifying them as threats. This could create a perverse incentive, leading students to avoid reporting serious or life-threatening behavior because they don't want to be labeled as a potential school shooter. These possibilities suggest that the proposed database is not only unlikely to improve student safety, but it will introduce many safety risks. In addition to posing the risks outlined above, it will create a permanent record of questionable accuracy that will follow students from school to school -- and possibly their entire lives. The overly broad nature of this service, coupled with its risks, means that Florida will engage in a mass surveillance effort that will ultimately provide little benefit and will significantly erode the civil liberties of your residents. Experts agree that data must be secured in proportion to its sensitivity and risk. The database contemplated in this case would include extraordinarily sensitive information, and therefore require extraordinary protections. It is incumbent on those proposing a risky program to demonstrate that they have mitigated the potential harms. The program's proponents have not done so. In fact, there have been no concrete proposals addressing how this extremely sensitive information about Florida's children would be secured. At the very least, this database must be put on hold until these vital security risks have been addressed. Because of these serious safety risks, we ask that you immediately halt the state's construction of this database and, instead, create a commission of parents, students, and experts on education, privacy, equity, disability rights, civil rights, and school safety, to determine whether a state database would actually help to identify school safety threats and would not pose undue harm to students. This commission should also identify the legal, ethical, privacy, and security parameters that should be an integral part of this database, including the understanding that data collected to help children should not be repurposed in ways that could harm them. Failing that, we ask that you require the state to produce the following protocols and information and make them publicly available:

?Data governance documents, including information about the sources from which the state obtains student data; who will have access to the data; which analytics, algorithmic, or AI processes and programs will be performed on the data; how data will be secured; and how those interacting with the data will be trained in how to use and protect it.

?A method by which parents may contest and correct both the information contained in the database and any inferences made about students based on the collected information.

?A deletion schedule for student information.

?A modified list of records to be collected that excludes information concerning students; disabilities, including information about mental health and substance use disorder histories and involuntary psychiatric examinations.

?A public commitment to abide by all federal and state privacy and non-discrimination laws. We hope that you will redirect this effort and work with us to practice evidence-based methods to keep students safe, without trampling on civil rights or the safety of all students.

Letter: Lawsuit Over Former Employer's Use of Biometric Fingerprint Scanner as a violation of Privacy and HIPAA

The state of Illinois passed the Illinois Biometric Information Privacy Act (BIPA) in 2008. The law is designed to protect the privacy of the state's citizens who may be requested to submit biometric markers for identity confirmation purposes. Fingerprints, retinal scans, voiceprints, facial scans and other physical traits that define an individual are collectively known as biometrics.

In January, the Illinois Supreme Court ruled in another biometrics case that "an individual need not allege some actual injury or adverse effect, beyond violation of his or her rights under the Act, in order to qualify as an 'aggrieved' person and be entitled to seek liquidated damages and injunctive relief pursuant to the Act."
