March 28th 2017 - Based on the work of Nikola Tesla, the University of Alberta team has shown how low-voltage electricity can be safely transmitted through the earth rather than using the normal two wires to carry a current. They connected a generator to a metal rod, electrifying the dirt so that LED bulbs with a special circuit lit up when they were attached to special receivers stuck in the ground about 20 metres away. Their work follows ideas explored at the turn of the 20th century by inventor Nikola Tesla, who constructed a giant tower in Long Island, N.Y., in hopes of creating a worldwide wireless transmission system. While more work remains to be done, he said the possibilities are huge. "You can make your whole work desk a source of power. Your cellphone or your laptop or other device, you can leave on the surface and it will get charged," he said. "You can put a conducting paint on the road and then drive your (electric) car without any batteries or you can have a battery that will be charged while you're driving."

I'm curious how it will affect the Billion people with no water? Because now, they have to walk 10 miles with 1 gallon of water on their head, every day for the rest of their lives. Then, they use their feces, since they have no water, and mix it with coal to cook their food, for the rest of their lives.

<http://edmontonjournal.com/news/local-news/earths-soil-could-transmit-electricity-to-your-home-car-university-of-alberta-researchers>

March 28th 2017 - Based on the work of Nikola Tesla, the University of Alberta team has shown how low-voltage electricity can be safely transmitted through the earth rather than using the normal two wires to carry a current. They connected a generator to a metal rod, electrifying the dirt so that LED bulbs with a special circuit lit up when they were attached to special receivers stuck in the ground about 20 metres away. Their work follows ideas explored at the turn of the 20th century by inventor Nikola Tesla, who constructed a giant tower in Long Island, N.Y., in hopes of creating a worldwide wireless transmission system. While more work remains to be done, he said the possibilities are huge. "You can make your whole work desk a source of power. Your cellphone or your laptop or other device, you can leave on the surface and it will get charged," he said. "You can put a conducting paint on the road and then drive your (electric) car without any batteries or you can have a battery that will be charged while you're driving."

March 28th 2017 - Based on the work of Nikola Tesla, the University of Alberta team has shown how low-voltage electricity can be safely transmitted through the earth rather than using the normal two wires to carry a current. They connected a generator to a metal rod, electrifying the dirt so that LED bulbs with a special circuit lit up when they were attached to special receivers stuck in the ground about 20 metres away. Their work follows ideas explored at the turn of the 20th century by inventor Nikola Tesla, who constructed a giant tower in Long Island, N.Y., in hopes of creating a worldwide wireless transmission system. While more work remains to be done, he said the possibilities are huge. "You can make your whole work desk a source of power. Your cellphone or your laptop or other device, you can leave on the surface and it will get charged," he said. "You can put a conducting paint on the road and then drive your (electric) car without any batteries or you can have a battery that will be charged while you're driving."

March 28th 2017 - Based on the work of Nikola Tesla, the University of Alberta team has shown how low-voltage electricity can be safely transmitted through the earth rather than using the normal two wires to carry a current. They connected a generator to a metal rod, electrifying the dirt so that LED bulbs with a special circuit lit up when they were attached to special receivers stuck in the ground about 20 meters away. Their work follows ideas by inventor Nikola Tesla, who constructed a giant tower in Long Island, N.Y., in hopes of creating a worldwide wireless transmission system. While more work remains to be done, he said the possibilities are huge. "You can make your whole work desk a source of power. Your cellphone or your laptop or other device, you can leave on the surface and it will get charged," he said. A year earlier in 1894, the first Hydro Plant using Tesla's AC Power System was the Jaruga Hydroelectric Power Plant built near Nikola Tesla's hometown in Serbia in Croatia. See the Niagara Falls Power Project (1888). A letter from Nikola Tesla to JP Morgan on 12/19/1904 reveals that Tesla tells Morgan that "if he had built Wardencllyffe at Niagara Falls, as was Rankine's suggestion (a partner in the Tesla Electric Company and head of the Niagara Power Company) it would be operable by now." The final psychological blow for Tesla occurred in 1906 after the deaths of Rankine (of a heart attack) and Stanford White (who was murdered in an infamous love scandal with model Evelyn Nesbitt). Tesla was all but alone now. He could not face his friends such as the Johnsons, nor could he face his failure any longer, and suffered a nervous breakdown. Due to my work in graphology, I have discovered a complete disintegration in his handwriting in that year from his secretary George Herbert Walker Scherff Sr confirms the hypothesis. The official nature of Tesla's Wardencllyffe tower is described in his Wardencllyffe Foreclosure Hearings in 1923. <http://teslaresearch.jimdo.com/niagara-falls-power-project-1888/>

Evidence suggests that Nikola Tesla first experimented with Hydropower and Wireless Power in Colorado Springs, 1899, not long after Niagara Falls went operational in 1896. The AMES hydro-electricity plant was setup by Westinghouse and Tesla starting in 1891, with A/C, for use by a nearby Mine, Telluride, Colorado Springs and potentialls the Tesla Colorado Springs Lab.

The Tesla Museum in Serbia bombed twice by the Allies and NATO. After the second time in 1999, the Croatian president emergency exits Croatia with secret papers. (Pilfered, not Stolen). Whatever was left went down with Building 7, the Solomon Brothers building, with the Enron papers, Al Gore, The Terminator, the man of steel, Stalin. NIST is still trying to answer that "after initiation of collapse" thing. The rest was destroyed by a hammer by Peter Lanza's, of GE Energy Finance, son Adam's on his hard drive. This issue has already been covered on Tesla Leaks. There are many example such as his patents showing straight lines on the horizon. He did state that he could create a disturbance at any point, and therefore should have been able to calculate it's exact proportions. Like in underground Topography.

colored yellowish in the present instance by impurities and of the nature, hardness, and composition of topaz, and I have also succeeded by small traces of chromic oxid and cobaltic oxid in getting green and blue transparent masses of the nature of emerald

On November 1st 2011, at 1:23AM, Jon Corzine steals the money from these companies contained in his holding company, and their private bank accounts. Days later, he goes bankrupt. Hydrazine vapor flowed through a quartz tube 13 mm in which a microwave discharge was excited with an open-reflector antenna powered by a Raytheon 2450 MHz 100-watt therapy unit. The discharge was initiated by a (Tesla coil) at a fairly low pressure of hydrazine, giving a hot, intense blue-white discharge which yielded no di-imide. Hydrazine pressure was then increased to the point just before the discharge went out -10 Torr, giving a blueish barely visible discharge with a yellowish core which generated optimum amounts of di-imide. The open-reflector antenna produced more di-imide than did a closed, tuned cavity with better coupling and a more intense discharge. A constriction in the quartz tube just below the discharge improved yields, probably by permitting a higher hydrazine pressure for a given flow rate. Although an apparently feeble, rather cool discharge gave the most di-imide, the yield was nevertheless roughly proportional to the power output of the microwave generator, which was usually set at 100%. 1973 <http://nrcresearchpress.com/doi/pdf/10.1139/v73-536> Hydrazine Wikipedia <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hydrazine> Hydrazine Rocket Fuel <https://youtube.com/watch?v=5UFTfwTxeEk> 1908 THE ELECTROCHEMICAL OXIDATION OF SOME HYDRAZINE SALTS <http://pubs.acs.org/doi/abs/10.1021/ja02202a009> journalCode=jacsat -- Mechanisms of photochemical reactions in urban air. Hydrazine vapor flowed through a quartz tube 13 mm in which a microwave discharge was excited with an open-reflector antenna powered by a Raytheon 2450 MHz 100-watt therapy unit. The discharge was initiated by a (Tesla coil) at a fairly low pressure of hydrazine, giving a hot, intense blue-white discharge which yielded no di-imide. Hydrazine pressure was then increased to the point just before the discharge went out -10 Torr, giving a blueish barely visible discharge with a yellowish core which generated optimum amounts of di-imide. The open-reflector antenna produced more di-imide than did a closed, tuned cavity with better coupling and a more intense discharge. A constriction in the quartz tube just below the discharge improved yields, probably by permitting a higher hydrazine pressure for a given flow rate. Although an apparently feeble, rather cool discharge gave the most di-imide, the yield was nevertheless roughly proportional to the power output of the microwave generator, which was usually set at 100%. 1973 <http://nrcresearchpress.com/doi/pdf/10.1139/v73-536> Hydrazene Wikipedia <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hydrazine> Hydrazine Rocket Fuel <https://youtube.com/watch?v=5UFTfwTxek> 1908 THE ELECTROCHEMICAL OXIDATION OF SOME HYDRAZINE SALTS <http://pubs.acs.org/doi/abs/10.1021/ja02202a009?journalCode=jacsat> -- Mechanisms of photochemical reactions in urban air. #tesla #conversion #transmutation #polygeneration #hydrogen #westinghouse #nuclear #power #desalination #heat #fertilizer In nuclear poker, who's betting on small multi-tasking reactors? Why are some nuclear power plants not producing power? Because they are producing Hydrogen, Liquid Fuels (See Nikola Tesla on liquefying gasses), Fertilizer (See Tesla's "Nitrogen Fixation"), De-Salination (Tesla 1901) & (Refining Metals (Tesla FBI File)) -- March 7, 2017 ((One example studied the costs of using nuclear heat in Arizona to switch from making steam to generate electricity to making heat to desalinate brackish water for irrigation when wind power drops electricity market prices too low. Another example in Texas looked at the economics of switching from selling nuclear electricity into a slumping electric market to providing heat to a factory that uses it to make synthetic gasoline. Another example in Texas looked at the economics of switching from selling nuclear electricity into a slumping electric market to providing heat to a factory that uses it to make synthetic gasoline. Others among its "12 pack," McGough explained, could use their electricity for splitting hydrogen out of water, creating an end product that could be stored and used for fuel-cell-powered cars or to sell to companies that make fertilizer.)) NuScale's plan is to convince the NRC that its system is so safe that there is no-danger of a Meltdown, so the emergency requirements should only extend to a plant's fence line.

#conversion #transmutation #polygeneration #hydrogen #methane #nitrogen #economy #coal #nuclear #hydro In nuclear poker, who's betting on small multi-tasking reactors? Why are some nuclear power plants not producing power? Because they are producing Hydrogen, Liquid Fuels (See Tesla on liquefying gasses), Fertilizer (See Tesla's "Nitrogen Fixation", De-Salination (Tesla 1901) & (Refining Metals (Tesla FBI File)) -- March 7, 2017 ((One example studied the costs of using nuclear heat in Arizona to switch from making steam to generate electricity to making heat to desalinate brackish water for irrigation when wind power drops electricity market prices too low. Another example in Texas looked at the economics of switching from selling nuclear electricity into a slumping electric market to providing heat to a factory that uses it to make synthetic gasoline. Others among its "12 pack," McGough explained, could use their electricity for splitting hydrogen out of water, creating an end product that could be stored and used for fuel-cell-powered cars or to sell to companies that make fertilizer.) NuScale's plan is to convince the NRC that its system is so safe that there is no-danger of a Meltdown, so the emergency requirements should only extend to a plant's fence line.

Matheson, Coleman and Bell was thoroughly degassed by prolonged pumping with stirring. No attempt was made to dry the hydrazine further, although care was taken not to introduce moisture since water appears to catalyze the decomposition of di-imide. Vigorous stirring of the hydrazine, and a water bath around the reservoir held slightly below room temperature, served to maintain a smooth and adequate flow of vapor. A Teflon-and-glass needle valve controlled the flow rate and pressure of hydrazine vapor. Hydrazine vapor flowed through a quartz tube (13 mm O.d.) in which a microwave discharge was excited with an open-reflector antenna powered by a Raytheon 2450 MHz 100-watt therapy unit. The discharge was initiated by a Tesla coil at a fairly low pressure of hydrazine, giving a hot, intense blue-white discharge which yielded no di-imide. Hydrazine pressure was then increased to the point just before the discharge went out (- 10 Torr), giving a blueish barely visible discharge with a yellowish core which generated optimum amounts of di-imide. The open-reflector antenna produced more di-imide than did a closed, tuned cavity with better coupling and a more intense discharge. A constriction in the quartz tube just below the discharge improved yields, probably by permitting a higher hydrazine pressure for a given flow rate. Although an apparently feeble, rather cool discharge gave the most di-imide, the yield was nevertheless roughly proportional to the power output of the microwave generator, which was usually set at 100%. 1973 <http://nrcresearchpress.com/doi/pdf/10.1139/v73-536> Hydrazene Wikipedia <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Hydrazine> Hydrazine Rocket Fuel <https://youtube.com/watch?v=5UFTfwTxeEk> 1908 THE ELECTROCHEMICAL OXIDATION OF SOME HYDRAZINE SALTS <http://pubs.acs.org/doi/abs/10.1021/ja02202a009?journalCode=jacsat> -- Mechanisms of photochemical reactions in urban air. #election #electors #russian #hacking #stolen #fake #news For citizens recalling the 2000 election's startling reminder that a majority of Americans don't necessarily elect presidents in America. Electors in three states have gone to court seeking the chance to vote their mind; another resigned to avoid the vote altogether. And a group of about 80 electors (including one Republican) signed on to a letter to National Intelligence Director James Clapper asking for a briefing on the role Russian hacks may have played in the election before the vote. Constitutionalists argue that the electors are free to vote however they please, although 29 states have Supreme Court-upheld laws requiring them to vote as their state did. Since 1948 there have only been nine of them. Even in the disputed 2000 presidential election, when passions ran almost as high as today, no electors changed their votes and just one abstained. <http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/politics-news/drama-filled-electoral-college-vote-fitting-ending-2016-election-n697521>

#fortknox #gold #tungsten #conspiracy Fort Knox does have Gold plated Tungsten bars. Why? The "PTB" correctly replaced the less useful and less valuable Gold with Tungsten. Tungsten is the best material used in solar cells to produce hydrogen gas, hydro-carbon fuel and CO2 from sunlight at a 300% better efficiency than Titanium or Cobalt.

July 1st 2016 -- Cannabinoids remove plaque-forming Alzheimer's proteins from brain cells -- ScienceDaily - Scientists have found preliminary evidence that (THC) and other compounds found in marijuana can promote the cellular removal of amyloid beta, a toxic protein associated with Alzheimer's disease. <http://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2016/06/160629095609.htm> In 2015, the below blog published the function and mode of the cannabis cure for Alzheimers. The G-Protein receptor in Cannabinoids is responsible for the removal of protein-snippets in the brain. The cannabinoids are then excreted out of the body with the said proteins. Further, the cure for skin cancer was allegedly invented by Nikola Tesla using Ozone and Cannabis Oil and other oils.

April 4th 2018, Martial Law has been declared in the U.S.. No, not Alex Jones's renewable energy hit piece called "Endgame". Not the movie "Endgame", It's "Operation Endgame" 2003-2012 plan under Office of Detention and Removal Operations of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement to detain and deport all "removable aliens" and "suspected terrorists" ("marijuana users", anyone they don't like) currently living in the U.S. by 2012.

#nikolatesla #radiantenergy Nikola Tesla's November 5th 1901 Anniversary (The only Day-Night Perpetual Motion Machine approved at the U.S. Patent Office) an "Apparatus for the Utilization of Radiant Energy" part of his Worldwide Wireless Power System where the receiver "antenna" is the "meter". <http://nikolateslasolar.blogspot.com/2014/11/nikola-tesla-apparatus-for-utilization.html?view=flipcard> -- Two months after the assassination of U.S. President McKinley on Oct 6th 1901; on November 11th, Tesla sends JP Morgan legal documents including international patents with improvements on various crucial aspects of his wireless machinery. He promises once again to beat Marconi in the race for the wireless. Morgan acknowledges receipt of the patents in a letter from his secretary to Tesla. However, in December, Marconi successfully transmits the letter S (dot/dot/dot) from England to Canada. <https://www.facebook.com/photo.php?fbid=1631103050535852&set=p.1631103050535852/> -- Tesla's latest patent up to November 11th, 1901 is his November 5th 1901, "Apparatus for the Utilization of Radiant Energy", a receiving device. <https://google.com/patents/US685957> -- The first referring patent to the "Apparatus" is LIDAR used in Autonomous vehicles like for Tesla Motors. <https://google.com/patents/US3455243> -- Some international patents for improvements in the transmission of electrical energy are here: <http://tfcbooks.com/patents/patents.htm> -- 100+ Nikola Tesla Letters to JP Morgan <https://youtube.com/watch?v=ZwdaHpeOOWI> -- More on JP Morgan & Tesla <http://teslatech.info/ttmagazine/v4n1/seifer.htm> -- Tesla simultaneously patented receiving devices for his transmission system on November 5th 1901 including: US Patent 685,955 Apparatus for Utilizing Effects Transmitted From a Distance to a Receiving Device Through Natural Media - US Patent 585,954 Method of Utilizing Effects Transmitted Through Natural Media - US Patent 685,953 Method of Intensifying and Utilizing Effects Transmitted Through Natural Media. Previously Tesla had already patented a Means for Increasing the Intensity of Electrical Oscillations (superconductivity) on October 22nd 1901, US Patent 685,012, using cold temperature and a superconducting liquid. -- "A simple explanation of Tesla's Radiant Energy Receiver by George Trinkaus: "For starters, think of this as a solar-electric panel. Tesla's invention is very different, but the closest thing to it in conventional technology is in photo-voltaics. One radical difference is that conventional solar-electric panels consist of a substrate coated with crystalline silicon; the latest use amorphous silicon. Conventional solar panels are expensive, and, whatever the coating, they are manufactured by esoteric processes. But Tesla's "solar panel" is just a shiny metal plate with a transparent coating of some insulating material which today could be a spray plastic. Stick one of these antenna-like panels up in the air, the higher the better, and wire it to one side of a capacitor, the other going to a good earth ground. Now the energy from the sun is charging that capacitor. Connect across the capacitor some sort of switching device so that it can be discharged at rhythmic intervals, and you have an electric output. Tesla's patent is telling us that it is that simple to get electric energy. The bigger the area of the insulated plate, the more energy you get. But this is more than a 'solar panel' because it does not necessarily need sunshine to operate. It also produces power at night." See another good presentation on Free-Energy Aerial Systems. From Tesla's Radiant Energy Receiver patent he states what the common thinking at the time is about the behavior of electricity and matter, "Minute particles of matter from secondary cosmic rays or the rays render the air and matter as conductive. These radiations are generally considered to be ether vibrations of extremely small wave lengths, and in explanation of the phenomena noted it has been assumed by some authorities that they ionize or render conducting the atmosphere through which they are propagated." Continuing from the patent, Tesla states his theory: "My own experiments and observations, however, lead me to conclusions more in accord with the theory heretofore advanced by me that sources of such radiant energy throw off with great velocity minute particles of matter which are strongly electrified, and therefore capable of charging an electrical conductor, even if not so, may at any rate discharge an electrified conductor either by carrying off bodily its charge or otherwise." "In applying my discovery I provide a condenser, preferably of considerable electrostatic capacity, and connect one of its terminals to an insulated metal plate or other conducting body exposed to the rays or streams of radiant matter." In Nikola Tesla's 1899 Colorado Springs Notes, Tesla used highly polished, large surface area, insulated plates "the plates act as a condenser", elevated tin foiled, copper and brass sphere's, for reasons presumably to absorb and emit or send and receive UV, even at night. Tesla recommends using his U.S. Patent #611719 for an Electrical Circuit Controller to convert the condenser discharges or his U.S. Patent #609246 for high frequency Electrical Circuit Controller using a conducting liquid. See the 1905 Electrical Chemical Society meetings on Aluminum & Tin Foil Condensers. June 2nd 2015 Physicists make first observation of the pushing pressure of light. "In applying my discovery I provide a condenser, preferably of considerable electrostatic capacity, and connect one of its terminals to an insulated metal plate or other conducting body exposed to the rays or streams of radiant matter." In Nikola Tesla's 1899 Colorado Springs Notes, Tesla used highly polished, large surface area, insulated plates "the plates act as a condenser", elevated tin foiled, copper and brass sphere's, for reasons presumably to absorb and emit or send and receive UV, even at night. Tesla recommends using his U.S. Patent #611719 for an Electrical Circuit Controller to convert the condenser discharges or his U.S. Patent #609246 for high frequency Electrical Circuit Controller using a conducting liquid. See the 1905 Electrical Chemical Society meetings on Aluminum & Tin Foil Condensers. June 2nd 2015 Physicists make first observation of the pushing pressure of light. Sorry Donald Trump, 20 year study on Wind turbines in Scotland have no effect on nearby eagles. "No adverse impact on survival or breeding", "In 15 years since 64 turbines have been in operation, only 2 observed flights of an eagle over the wind farm, out of 1000's". Note: There is no such thing as "flying Desert Turtles" which are alleged to be affected by wind turbines and solar panels.

With the Trillions of dollars oil, gas and coal companies have, there isn't one video on Youtube, nor Google Images of a legitimate situation where a bird nor turtle nor a bug, nor a sheep trail is hurt by a wind turbine or solar panel. (Not even with Photoshop or After Effects) <http://scotsman.com/news/environment/wind-turbines-in-argyll-have-no-effect-on-nearby-golden-eagles-study-finds-1-4226776>

A new study now demonstrates how the ultrafast light-induced modulation of the atomic positions in a material can control its magnetization. An international research team led by Andrea Cavalleri from the Max Planck Institute for the Structure and Dynamics of Matter at CFEL in Hamburg used terahertz light pulses to excite pairs of lattice vibrations in a magnetic crystal. These short bursts of light caused the lattice ions to rotate around their equilibrium positions, acting as an ultrafast effective magnetic field on the electronic spins to coherently drive a magnetic wave <http://phys.org/news/2016-10-light-driven-atomic-rotations-magnetic.html>

Researchers posit way to locally circumvent Second Law of Thermodynamics. "This provides us a platform for the practical realization of a quantum Maxwell's demon, which could make possible a local quantum perpetual motion machine." Clinton vs Trump debate on energy - Clinton admits the TPP is about "Fast Tracking" of renewable energy programs and transmission lines across borders. "Open Borders" refers to open trade for renewable energy. Saudi payments to Clinton in Feb 2015 was one month after the U.S. added 20-70% tariffs on Chinese solar panels, which have dropped below $.40 per watt in 2011. <http://www.ips-dc.org/fast-track-bill-ignores-lessons-of-financial-crisis/> You would think the proliferation of such "investor-state" suits in recent years would give policymakers pause. Here we are, for example, in the middle of the climate crisis, and yet investors are allowed to sue governments over policies to encourage renewable energy. In the wake of the Fukushima disaster, we have a case against Germany over their decision to phase out nuclear power. And at a time when tobacco-related health costs total about half a trillion dollars per year, Philip Morris is suing the governments of Australia and Uruguay over anti-smoking laws.

Clinton vs Trump debate on energy - Clinton admits the TPP is about "Fast Tracking" of renewable energy programs and transmission lines across borders. "Open Borders" refers to open trade for renewable energy. Saudi payments to Clinton in Feb 2015 was one month after the U.S. added 20-70% tariffs on Chinese solar panels, which have dropped below $.40 per watt in 2011. <http://www.ips-dc.org/fast-track-bill-ignores-lessons-of-financial-crisis/> You would think the proliferation of such "investor-state" suits in recent years would give policymakers pause. Here we are, for example, in the middle of the climate crisis, and yet investors are allowed to sue governments over policies to encourage renewable energy. In the wake of the Fukushima disaster, we have a case against Germany over their decision to phase out nuclear power. #clinton #trump #debate #energy #fasttrack #tpp Clinton vs Trump debate on energy - Clinton admits the tpp is about "Fast Tracking" of renewable energy programs and transmission lines across borders. "Open Borders" refers to open trade for renewable energy. Saudi payments to Clinton in Feb 2015 was one month after the U.S. added 20-70% tariffs on Chinese solar panels, which have dropped below $.40 per watt in 2011. <http://ips-dc.org/fast-track-bill-ignores-lessons-of-financial-crisis/> You would think the proliferation of such "investor-state" suits in recent years would give policymakers pause. Here we are, for example, in the middle of the climate crisis, and yet investors are allowed to sue governments over policies to encourage renewable energy. In the wake of the Fukushima disaster, we have a case against Germany over their decision to phase out nuclear power. And at a time when tobacco-related health costs total about half a trillion dollars per year, Philip Morris is suing the governments of Australia and Uruguay over anti-smoking laws.

#algore #election #rigged On November 9 2000, at 12:30am west coast time, Sixteen-thousand votes for Gore disappeared overnight. Some votes were simply trashed by ballot handlers. In Duval County, 27,000 ballots were discarded, over half of them from black precincts in Jacksonville. No official challenges were filed within the 72-hour time limit, so thousands of mostly Democratic votes were lost. Sixteen-thousand votes for Gore disappeared overnight from the ongoing Volusia County tally and were reinstated only when an election supervisor questioned the subtraction of already registered votes. No voting machine company representative or election official was able to explain what happened. <http://republicansexposed.org/2000-election-rigged-2/>

Physicists pass spin information through a superconductor. Harnessing electron spin is really exciting for quantum information processing because not only can an electron spin up or down—one or zero—but it can also spin any direction between the two poles. Because it follows the rules of quantum mechanics, an electron can occupy all of those positions at once. Imagine the power of a computer that could calculate all of those positions simultaneously. <http://phys.org/news/2016-10-physicists-superconductor.html>

#superradiance When synchronized, the collection of small antennas act like a single "super antenna" that broadcasts power into the cavity at a much higher than normal rate—a process called superradiance because the collective emission is 1,000 times more intense than independently radiating atoms. The emission rate increases proportionally to the number of atoms squared, making the laser much brighter than is possible without synchronization. Read more at: <http://phys.org/news/2016-10-jila-superradiant-laser-day-boost.html> -- JILA's superradiant laser uses 200,000 strontium atoms stacked in layers of 5,000 and trapped in a hollow enclosure—a cavity—between two mirrors (these mirrors do vibrate, but the frequency information is stored in the atoms). The atoms are chilled to temperatures near absolute zero and levitated in a vacuum by an optical lattice, a "crystal of light" created by intersecting external laser beams.
