Vincent Cordova's 2028 Campaign Takes Bold Global Stand on Private Equity Reform: A Call for Public Input and Collaboration

Manteca, California — As part of his 2028 presidential campaign, Vincent Cordova announced a bold and transformative initiative to address the growing dangers of cross-ownership among private equity firms. This initiative represents a decisive step toward combating monopolistic practices and ensuring an economy that works for everyone—not just the privileged few. By emphasizing public input and collaboration, the campaign is committed to building a reform plan that reflects the voices and needs of all Americans and resonates with global audiences.

“This is about more than policy—it is about protecting the future of our communities and standing up against unchecked financial power worldwide,” Vincent Cordova said. “Together, we can create a global economy rooted in fairness and opportunity.”

Cross-ownership among private equity (PE) firms creates monopolistic networks that harm workers, small businesses, and consumers. It allows financial empires to consolidate control, drive up costs, suppress wages, and decimate local economies. These impacts are not confined to the U.S. but extend globally, affecting economies and communities worldwide. Over the past decade, these practices have:

- Increased Healthcare Costs: PE buyouts in the healthcare sector have prioritized profits over patients, leading to higher costs and reduced care quality in multiple countries.
- Harmed Small Businesses: Local businesses worldwide have struggled to compete with PE-backed conglomerates employing aggressive, predatory strategies.
- Exploited Workers: Employees at PE-controlled companies often face layoffs, wage stagnation, and reduced benefits, regardless of geography.
- Weakened Communities: Industries essential to everyday life, such as housing and utilities, have been targeted for profit, leaving communities vulnerable on a global scale.

“We must also recognize the potential for lobbying efforts by private equity firms to distort public opinion and influence policymakers. These firms will likely invest heavily in campaigns to protect their monopolistic practices, threatening the integrity of democratic processes. Transparency and public vigilance are essential to combat this.”

Vincent Cordova’s Vision for Global Reform

Cordova’s plan to prohibit cross-ownership among private equity firms aims to restore balance and equity in the marketplace—both in the U.S. and as a model for global economies. The initiative emphasizes transparency, fairness, and public accountability through:

1. Time for Public Input: The campaign will host town halls, virtual forums, and international discussions to gather insights from workers, small business owners, and communities affected by PE practices. This feedback will shape the final reform plan.
2. Breaking Monopolistic Networks: By ending cross-ownership, the initiative will restore competition and prevent financial empires from consolidating undue control globally.
3. Economic Support Programs: Resources will be allocated to ensure small businesses and workers have the tools to thrive during and after the reform.
4. Transparency and Accountability: The campaign will push for new disclosure requirements that shine a light on hidden financial relationships, setting an example for international transparency.
5. Dedicated Funding Mechanisms: A portion of penalties collected from private equity firms found in violation of anti-competitive practices will be directed toward financing these initiatives, ensuring the Task Force and related reforms are sustainably funded.

- Join the Conversation: Participate in town halls, virtual forums, and international discussions to ensure your voice is heard.
- Help Build the Future: Collaborate with the campaign to craft policies that reflect the diverse needs and aspirations of global communities.

“This initiative is a promise to the people of the world,” Cordova said. “We will take the time to listen, learn, and act. Together, we can ensure that our economy serves everyone—not just a privileged few.”

A Vision for 2028 and Beyond

Vincent Cordova’s campaign is dedicated to creating a world where fairness, opportunity, and freedom are not just ideals but realities. By addressing the systemic issues posed by private equity cross-ownership, this initiative lays the groundwork for a stronger, more equitable global economy.
