Small Microchange We'll Practice

This week, our small step is:

Learning one new thing together and noticing what we may be naturally drawn to explore.

4

Opening Prayer Together

Dear God, thank You for minds that can learn and hearts that can grow. Guide our curiosity, help us try new things, and show us the gifts You are growing in us. Bless our learning today and lead us with wisdom.
Amen.

5

Share One Small Moment

Something small that happened this week that helped us learn, wonder, or imagine a future role:

Grandparent may write while your grandchild shares — perhaps saying, “I can see how naturally drawn you are to this. The way you learn and wonder tells me something special about who you are becoming. Let me write that down so we can keep exploring it together.” Or, “Your interests matter. I want to remember what you love learning about and how your gifts are growing.”

6

Draw It!

Draw a picture of something you love learning about, a job or role you wonder about, or a skill you want to grow.

Faith Reflection & Prayer

This week's Scripture

— James 1:5

What does this mean to us?

Let's pray a blessing for our week together:

Lord, thank You for curious minds and growing gifts. Bless our learning, questions, and efforts. Help us discover what we love, use our talents with kindness, and keep our hearts brave when something is new. Guide us toward the good work You are preparing for us. Amen.

Learning + Future Role Note

One thing we learned today or one future role we want to explore more:

A large, empty rectangular box with a blue border, intended for writing a note. In the bottom right corner of the box, there are three small, overlapping heart outlines.

God helps us grow through learning.
When we ask questions, practice new skills,
and imagine how we can help others,
we grow in wisdom, confidence, and purpose.
