On the auspicious occasion of Diwali, I send my warmest wishes to all those celebrating Diwali this week and all the fellow citizens living in USA and abroad. This week, across the Indian diaspora (including its beloved members here at UIANE), we celebrate Diwali. Just when we need it most, Diwali reminds us of the triumph of light over darkness, good over evil, and knowledge over ignorance.

Diwali comes in the autumn, on the darkest of nights during the new moon. This diwali, celebrants will light rooftops with oil lamps, fill windows with candles, and explode joyful fireworks. Celebrants decorate floors with intricate designs of brightly colored powder to welcome the divine, cook enormous feasts, and exchange gifts.

For Hindus (and Jains and Sikhs), Diwali fosters the inner light that protects against spiritual darkness. As diyas are lit throughout homes, workplaces, communities, and places of worship, their warmth reminds us of the hope and devotion that faith and tradition bring into our lives. We remember that the smallest of candles can pierce the darkness.

To those who celebrate here in America, we are grateful to you for making the traditions of Diwali part of America's story. For generations, you have opened your homes and hearts during Diwali to exchange gifts and sweets, host feasts with family and friends, and organize cultural programs in our communities – with prayers and dances, vibrant and colorful art, and sparklers and fireworks – that bring us all together.

UIANE offers a range of activities including Celebration of Holi Festival, Health Fair, Membership Drive, International Women's Day, Annual Summer Picnic, Spirit of India Summer Fest, Senior Event, Walk against Breast Cancer, Diwali Cultural Program and New Years Eve Party.

My sincere thanks to the business community whose generosity has made this event a great success. "Wishing you and your business success, prosperity, and happiness this Diwali. May the festival of lights brighten up your future and bring new opportunities for growth. As we light the lamps of Diwali, we also light the path to continued partnership and shared success. Happy Diwali to you and your team.

Thanks to all the participants and parents who have worked so hard to prepare for this function and present their vibrant items for our cultural program and above all a big applause to our executive committee, board of directors and advisors and all the volunteers who have been working very hard to make every event a success.

May the light of Diwali illuminate your home and heart with happiness and prosperity. Wishing you a blessed, healthy, and prosperous Diwali. May this Diwali bring you joy, peace, and good fortune. Wishing you a bright and auspicious Diwali.

Neela Gandhi

Sincerely,
Dr. Neela Gandhi
