

Restorative Practices for Educators

Foster Positive Classroom and School Culture

October 14 & 15
8:00 am - 3:30 pm
(Location shared upon registration)
Trainer: Patricia Marquez-Singh

Training Details

During this two-day introductory experience, you will learn:

- fundamental theory and practices for engaging with students, staff, and parents in your school setting.
- how to apply the restorative practices continuum and understand which restorative practices are best for achieving certain goals when responding to particular situations.

Topics include:

- the importance of being explicit about practice
- how to set high expectations while being supportive
- ways to build community in your setting

We will focus specifically on facilitating circles, an essential process for creating a positive learning environment and school culture.

Designed for:

Adults who support K-12 school settings and can be universally applicable.
