An Investment In Art

With community support, the first major work of art at Napa Valley College will soon be a reality. Thanks to the generosity of the artist, Franco Vianello, and a generous challenge grant donation from Napa businessman Peter Bedford, a bronze sculpture of a bear feeding her cubs will adorn the fountain in front of the college's administration building. The three-quarter life-size work is valued at more than $50,000.

However, the college still needs $8,000 to match the $10,000 challenge grant, and we need your support. Please help us complete this project by sending your tax deductible contribution today. You may use the form below. Thank you for your support.

Pictured here is the working model for the statue which will become the college's first major art work.
