

One for the Team

A Self-paced Professional Development Program for ECE
Teams Working Towards a
Neurodiversity-Affirming Model of Inclusive Early Learning

Authors: Dr Elizabeth Aylward & Jasmine Holland

This is a practical and helpful professional development program that has been specifically designed to provide everyday strategies and skills to Educators in Mainstream Early Childhood Education and Care Services (ECECs) and Schools including neurodivergent children. It has been mapped to the Early Years Learning Framework and the National Quality Standards and is NESAP Approved. This self-paced package covers the following topics:

- The child as an active agent in their own learning
- Becoming the child's play partner to build the foundation for engagement in learning
- Optimising the child's motivation for participating in your program
- Promoting the child's attention to you and their peers
- Helping the child to play with their peers and move through transitions
- Teaching the child to communicate with you and their peers
- Helping the child to learn by imitating others
- Understanding and supporting the child's self-regulation
- Creating effective and responsive learning environments
- Follow up coaching is offered to consolidate your learning

If this is what you and your team are needing help with, sign up today to receive this self-paced learning program by emailing: eylward@uow.edu.au