A Story of two orchids

Once upon a time, there lived two orchids, one a fiery red,
the other a soft, blushing pink.

Despite their polar differences, they held a deep affection for and a boundless patience to every side of each other.

Every year, they celebrated their birthdays together.

Finding joy in the simplest of moments and never tiring of each other's company.

Embracing their quirks, they were always there for one another.

"I designed this ring to symbolise our friendship as golden orchids, with a rock promise of strength and endurance; just as a nascent vine that entwines two lives, signifying growth and the interweaving of our journeys."

Showing their love for each other and never being embarrassed by it.

Just right for each other.

They simply complement one another so beautifully.

It is their 15th year together, quite remarkable, isn't it?

Kattyyes2004