The 'triangle' in your name can tell the future

By AMAL JAYASINGHE

Colombo, Dec. 6: An Indian draftsman claims triangles help him predict the future and bring fortune to people and firms, but has so far gone round in circles in his quest for a scientific explanation to his theory.

The triangles of the pyramids and the Sri Chakra, an eighth-century Hindu symbol which represents Shiva and Parvathi, are a virtual crystal ball for 39-year-old R.K.S. Muthukrishnan of Tamil Nadu.

Now a full-time triangle researcher, he is visiting Sri Lankan temples and ancient sites as part of a study into the angles common to the Egyptian pyramids, the Star of David and the Sri Chakra. Mr Muthukrishnan says he stumbled on the similarities while working as a draftsman and now finds he has a sixth sense to see triangles in the names of people and interpret them to predict the future.

"I am not a soothsayer," Mr

Muthukrishnan says, insisting his line of work is not astrology. He calls his work "anthrobio-metrics" and his business card describes him as a researcher. He also has an Internet homepage,

THE BOTTOM LINE

<http://www.kode.netforesee/fractals/>, where visitors are shown a reproduction of the Chakra as well as press clippings on Mr Muthukrishnan's predictions.

Mr Muthukrishnan points out that the Sri Chakra has nine triangles — five in one direction and four in the other — and the angles of 51° coincide with the angle of the Great Pyramid at Giza.

He says a three-dimensional view of the Sri Chakra would show a striking similarity with the pyramids. The triangles are "receptacles of cosmic energy" and could have a bearing on human destiny, he says. The more he looks at pyramids and the Chakra, Mr Muthukrishnan says he is able to look into a person's name and translate it into triangles. The angles could give an insight into the person's past, present and future, he said.

He says former Miss India Pamela Bordes, who rose to notoriety with a colourful life in London, had her troubles disappear after she took his advice to adopt her maiden name Singh, which gave better vibrations. He claims to have predicted the 1984 assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. (AFP)
