Trusted Peer Community for K-12 Technology & Cybersecurity Leaders

About K-12 Cybersecurity

K-12 Cybersecurity is a peer community for school-district leaders responsible for technology infrastructure, cybersecurity, and IT operations — not instructional technology.

Founded by Mark Finlayson — 25 years as a K-12 technology leader, plus a decade advising districts from 200 to 200,000 students.

Being a K-12 tech leader is rewarding — and often isolating. This peer community is for second opinions, hallway-style questions, and leaders who are the bottom line for infrastructure and security.

We invite you to join an upcoming peer discussion and see if it provides value. No pressure — listen in, or jump in when you have something to share.

Monthly Peer Discussions

- ☒ School email required to register (so vendors aren't lurking)
- ☒ Sessions are not recorded (so you can speak freely)
- ☒ Contact info is never sold, shared, or distributed

Our Mission

At K-12 Cybersecurity our mission is to:

- Provide a trusted peer community for K-12 technology and cybersecurity leaders to share, learn, and connect.
- Provide K-12 tailored cybersecurity solutions (only if desired) at a cost-conscious rate without sales pressure. Our focus is on helping, not hype. See page 2 for details.

Bonus

First-time attendees can request a confidential 60–90 minute security consulting discussion with Mark Finlayson (optional).

- Confidential and district-focused
- Practical guidance and peer perspective
- No obligation or follow-up commitment
- No cost
