Sponsorship Prospectus

Acknowledgement of country

We acknowledge the traditional custodians of the lands on which we work and live across Australia and acknowledge that sovereignty was never ceded. We pay respects to our elder's past, present and emerging. We thank our elders for their guidance and commitment to the advancement of our communities. We stand in solidarity with the stolen generation and their families, calling for healing and justice for the atrocities suffered by individuals, families, and communities. We also acknowledge the many Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people that have or continue to work tirelessly in eye health and vision care, to close the gap in preventable vision loss in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities so they can be well and flourishing.

The First Nations Eye Health Alliance Logo

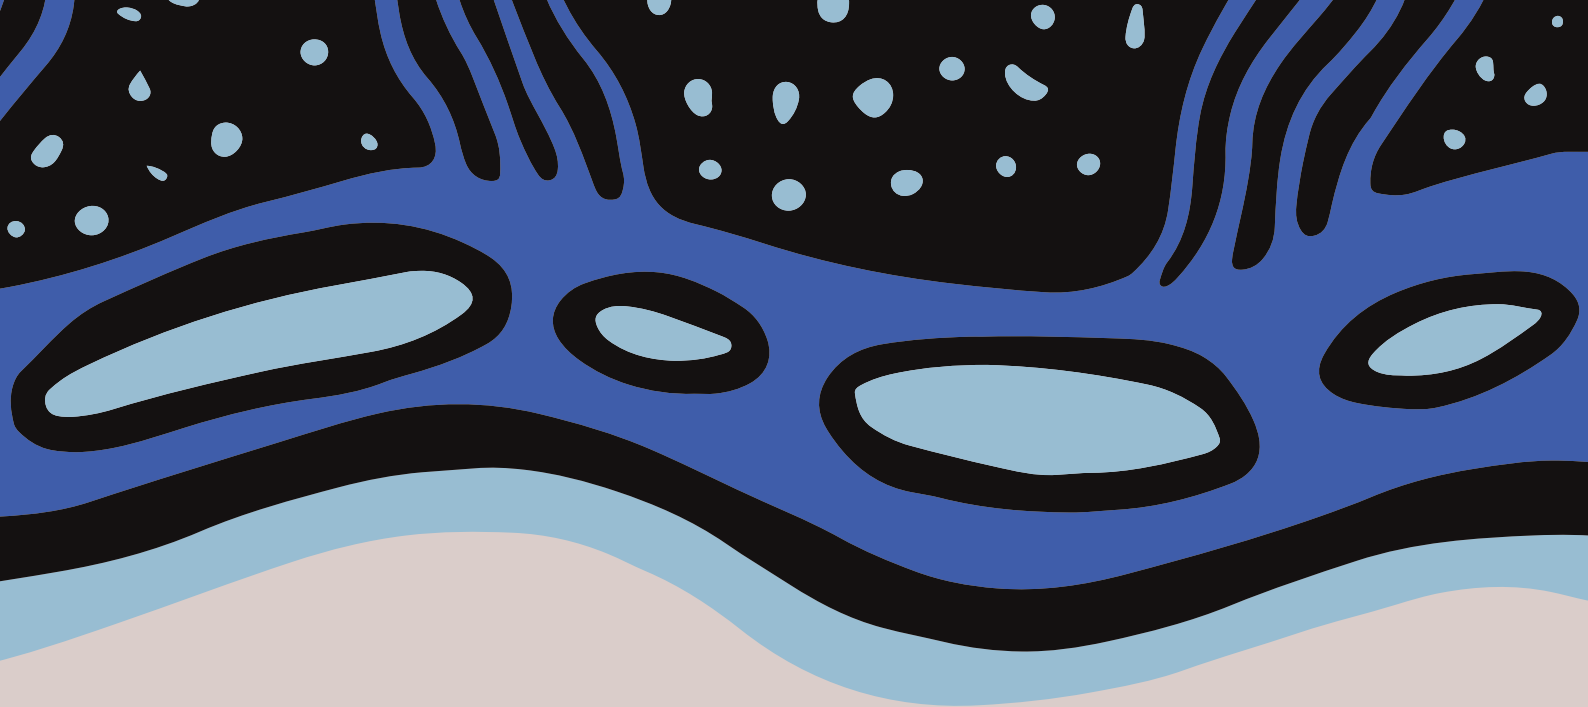

Designed by contemporary Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artist Dennis Golding (Kamilaroi/Gamilaraay), the artwork and logo speak of contemporary and traditional pathways that support healing and wellbeing in our communities. The artwork and logo acknowledge and celebrate the diversity of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in Australia and how we connect with to one another through these pathways as one people. More information on our logo and the artist can be found here: www.fneha.com.au/branding.

Conference Artwork

‘Connecting Land, Sky and Water’, created by contemporary Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artist Dennis Golding expresses Aboriginal peoples connection to land, sky and water since time immemorial. Our history shows how our people have cared for Country including the waterways and land that provides us sources for life and culture. This artwork recognises how the First Nations Eye Health Alliance aim to provide pathways, support and care into our community for better outcomes in health and wellbeing. It acknowledges how communities who come from all parts of country including salter water, freshwater regions, to connect and work together as one. The artwork allows people to see the roots of Country, the cultural practices on land, the tracks we mark, the waters we live off and around, and the stories we reflect and connect to from sky Country.

A message from the CEO of the First Nations Eye Health Alliance, Ms. Lose (Rose) Fonua

The future is bright as we build eye health and vision care approaches that are 'Seeing Our Way'

Welcome to the National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Eye Health Conference 2025 (NATSIEHC25) Sponsorship Prospectus. In 2025, The First Nations Eye Health Alliance Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Corporation is proud to be the conference convenor and host for the National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Eye Health Conference. This marks a pivotal moment for us, as we take full leadership of this conference and bring First Nations people's vision for eye health to life. We thank for the Indigenous Eye Health Unit, University of Melbourne for their many years of stewardship and delivery of this conference. Thankyou to the broader eye health and vision care sector for participation and support of the conference.

Now in its ninth year, this national conference continues to be a beacon of commitment and action by dedicated individuals and organisations passionate about addressing disparities in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander eye health and vision care. Through these annual gatherings, we have catalysed significant work and fostered key relationships that are innovating and strengthening the way we work in eye health and vision care. These changes have had some important wins, but there is still so much work to do and to ensure that future is bright, we need to do that together.

This year's theme, 'Seeing Our Way' sets the premise for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander leadership and positioning as a necessary part of building future sector activities that connect and strengthen our planning and operational capability into the future.

Collectively as a sector, we are committed to pushing the dial and raising the profile of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander eye health and vision care in Australia. With the retirement of some of our key national eye health plans and with an ever changing resource environment, we are consistently pivoting to meet the ongoing challenge of seating our activities in a framework of activity that can effectively build healthy and flourishing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities across the life course.

Effective and culturally-appropriate eye health and vision care services is a necessary part of this and the action of infusing communities with the resources and capabilities for this to happen is a critical part of this work. The theme 'Seeing Our Way' is also about working together so we can not only imagine, but foster in a future where the eye health outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in these communities are strong and bright.

I invite you to walk with us, as we, through 'Seeing Our Way', work together to building this incredible capability as a sector into the future.

Nations Eye Health Alliance

Introduction

The First Nations Eye Health Alliance to undertake conference management into the future.

The National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander eye health conference commenced in 2017 and was formerly convened by the Indigenous Eye Health Unit, University of Melbourne and co-hosted with a variety of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations.

The First Nations Eye Health Alliance have undertaken co-hosting capabilities for the first time in 2024 and an agreement has been reached to transition full operational management (conference convenor) activities from Indigenous Eye Health Unit to the Alliance from 2025 onwards. We are pleased to be able to take carriage of this conference from 2025 onwards and acknowledge its rich roots and work to date. Held annually since that time, the conference has become a mainstay for the sector to come together and present and the wide variety of voices presented supports discussion and sharing of success stories, learnings, and challenges in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander eye health from across Australia.

The First Nations Eye Health Alliance (FNEHA) is a registered charity and all donations to the Alliance are tax deductible. For more information on how to make a donation, please visit our website. Our ABN & ACNC number is 24 821 279 064.

The conference theme for 2025 is: Seeing Our Way

The 2025 National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Eye Health Conference is set under the compelling theme, Seeing Our Way. This theme reflects our dedication to transforming the landscape of eye health for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples through active and impactful initiatives. We aim through the conference to:

Cultivate Leadership: A primary focus of the conference is to foster and elevate emerging leaders from within Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, equipping them with the skills and insights necessary to lead future health initiatives.

Promote Integrated Health Solutions: We aim to showcase and discuss innovative health solutions that seamlessly integrate traditional Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander knowledge with contemporary medical practices, setting a precedent for holistic health care.

Empower Community Health Practices: The conference will spotlight sustainable health practices that empower communities to manage and improve their eye health, ensuring these methods are culturally attuned and community approved.

The 2025 Conference is an integral part of the growth of our collaborative work towards ending preventable vision loss and blindness in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Communities.

A Catalyst for Change: NATSIEHC25 serves as a critical platform for instigating meaningful health policy changes. It brings together health professionals, community leaders, and policymakers to forge a united front in tackling eye health disparities.

A Hub for Policy Influence: By drawing on the collective expertise and experiences of its attendees, the conference aims to influence and shape health policies that better cater to the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Advancing Health Through Collaboration: The event is pivotal in fostering collaboration and knowledge exchange among stakeholders, driving forward the adoption of best practices and innovative solutions in eye health.

2025 Organisation Structure
