Effective Communication Strategies:

Communication is more than just talking and listening — it's also about sending and receiving messages through attitude, tone of voice, facial expressions and body language.

As people with Alzheimer's and other dementias progress and the ability to use words is lost, families need new ways to connect. Learn to decode the verbal and behavioral messages delivered by someone with dementia, and identify strategies to help you communicate at each stage of the disease.

However, some behaviors can present real challenges for caregivers to manage. Join us to learn to decode behaviors messages, identify common behavior triggers, and learn strategies to help intervene with some of the most common behavioral challenges of Alzheimer's disease.

Dementia Conversations:

When someone is showing signs of dementia, it's time to talk. Often, conversations with family about changing behaviors can be challenging and uncomfortable. This program provides tips for breaking the ice with your family so you can address some of the most common issues that are difficult to discuss: going to the doctor for a diagnosis or medical treatment, deciding when to stop driving, and making legal and financial plans for future care.

Support Groups

Support groups provide a forum to share feelings, concerns, information, and learn new skills. There is no cost for attending and no commitment to come back. All of our support groups are facilitated by trained individuals. Most groups are for all types of dementia care partners, but there are also specific groups designed for individuals with early stage dementia.
