WORLD'S LARGEST POTATO BASKET

In 2017, Richard Silliboy, Vice Chief of the Aroostook Band of Micmacs, crafted this 7 1/2 foot potato basket as part of a special exhibit at the museum that highlights contributions of the Micmac Tribe to potato harvesting in the County. Silliboy comes from a family of basketmakers going back several generations and his work is sought after by collectors from around the world.

EXPLORE OUR COLLECTIONS

We have a model potato house, old cars, household items, toys, tools, farm equipment, snow plows and so much more!

Our Vision

To collect and preserve the rich, rural heritage of Aroostook County for future generations.

How it Started

In the early 1990s, a handful of community members had a vision of creating a place to collect and preserve the many antiques and artifacts that were in danger of leaving the County or being lost to time. Through the hard work and dedication of many passionate and committed volunteers, that dream has become a reality.

Volunteers

We are thankful for all of our dedicated volunteers who continue to help in a wide variety of ways: giving tours, cleaning and maintaining the museum and grounds, writing grants, and putting on our monthly suppers, to name a few. Perhaps you have time or talent you'd like to share - let us know if you'd like to get involved!

The Southern Aroostook Agricultural Museum is about much more than tractors, diggers, and agriculture. It is comprised of several buildings filled with thousands of items that were part of rural life in Aroostook County, Maine's largest and northernmost county. Anchored by a former school that has been transformed into the original museum, the property also houses two large barns, a one-room schoolhouse, a general store, a filling station and a blacksmith/barrel shop.

There is so much history to see here, we hope you will come and make a day of it!

Main Building

Formerly an elementary school, the main building now houses an extensive collection of tools, toys, household items, small farm implements, a model potato house and much, much more.

Cole Building

Dedicated to AJ "Allie" Cole and Galen Cole, this barn houses a highway truck and plow where visitors can climb up and experience how big of a machine it was to drive and operate on snowy highways.

Ross Schoolhouse

The Ross Ridge School was the last remaining one room schoolhouse in Littleton. It was donated to the museum and moved to our site in 2004. It holds many items and memories of learning.

Hagan Barn

This barn houses many old pieces, from one-row, horse drawn diggers to wooden wheeled bicycles. There is so much to see and explore.

Barrel Shop and Blacksmith

Built by Colby Shaw and family, the Blacksmith Shop contains forges, anvils and tools used to handle hot irons. the Barrel Shop features tools used to make barrels.

General Store & Filling Station

The general store was a place where you might get mail, settle by the wood stove to play a game of checkers with a friend or buy something you couldn't provide for yourself.
