Introduction: Discerning Truth: The Battle for Faith in a World of False Light

Have you ever found yourself questioning what you once believed? Have you noticed how, when you take a step back, the world looks different—almost as if unseen forces are shaping it? Biblical scripture has a way of drawing us back to what we may have once overlooked, reminding us that God's word is not just an ancient text but a living, breathing truth with profound relevance. For me, curiosity about God's word is what keeps me grounded, reinforcing that faith is not just a passive belief but an active pursuit of truth.

- Ephesians 6:11-13 King James Version (KJV) serves as a powerful reminder of this reality:

"Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand."

This passage makes it clear: there is a battle beyond what we see, one that is not fought with physical weapons but with spiritual discernment. It is in recognizing this battle that the truth of Christ's salvation becomes even more vital. But in this fight, not everything that appears righteous is truly of God.

This brings us to a crucial question: How can we discern between true faith and a counterfeit? How can we recognize when something that seems like light is actually leading people astray? One of the greatest threats to the church today is not blatant opposition, but deception from within. Figures like Paula White-Cain are prime examples of this. As a self-proclaimed spiritual advisor and prosperity gospel preacher, she twists scripture to fit a narrative of material wealth and personal gain—one that directly contradicts the teachings of Christ. The prosperity gospel she promotes is not the gospel of Jesus, but a distortion that prioritizes earthly success over spiritual truth.

This piece will examine how spiritual deception operates, how false teachers like Paula White-Cain mislead believers, and why it is essential to arm ourselves with the true word of God. I invite you to reflect on these questions as we navigate the difference between the true light of Christ and the false light that seeks to dim our faith.

Paula White-Cain: Trump's Longtime Spiritual Advisor and Her Rise to the White House

Paula White-Cain's connection with Donald Trump began in the early 2000s when Trump, after watching her television sermons, reached out to her (Wikipedia). Over time, their relationship grew, and she became one of his key spiritual advisors. By 2016, White-Cain had taken on a formal role in Trump's presidential campaign, serving as the chair of his evangelical advisory board. Her influence continued into his presidency, as she delivered the invocation at his inauguration on January 20, 2017, making history as the first female clergy member to do so (Wikipedia).

In November 2019, Trump appointed White-Cain as a special advisor to the Faith and Opportunity Initiative within the Office of Public Liaison (Wikipedia). Following Trump's re-election, she was named a senior advisor and special government employee in February 2025 within the newly established White House Faith Office (WhiteHouse.gov).

Her rise to these influential positions highlights Trump's long-standing regard for her as his personal pastor and spiritual advisor—a relationship that has endured for over two decades.

The White House Faith Office: A Platform for Service or a Stage for False Teaching?

The White House Faith and Opportunity Initiative is an important advisory office that helps shape policies related to religious communities, faith-based organizations, and social initiatives. This office serves as a bridge between the government and faith-based groups, ensuring that religious organizations can play a role in addressing social issues such as poverty, addiction recovery, and community support. The person leading or advising this office should be someone who upholds sound Biblical principles, and prioritizes faith's role in service to the nation rather than self-promotion.

Paula White-Cain was appointed as an advisor to this office during the Trump administration, a decision that was highly controversial. White-Cain is a well-known proponent of the prosperity gospel, a doctrine that teaches that faith is a means to material wealth and personal success. This ideology contradicts core biblical teachings about humility, sacrifice, and the dangers of worldly riches.

- 1 Timothy 6:10 in the King James Version (KJV):

"For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

Many theologians and Christian leaders have criticized her teachings as misleading, arguing that they distort the gospel's true message of salvation and selflessness.

Her appointment raised concerns about whether she was the right person to represent and influence faith-based initiatives at a national level. Instead of reinforcing biblical truth and advocating for spiritual integrity, her leadership risked promoting a version of Christianity that prioritizes personal gain over faithfulness to God's word. If the goal of the Faith and Opportunity Initiative is to encourage faith-based organizations to serve the common good, then it is crucial that its leaders exemplify sound doctrine and genuine commitment to biblical principles—qualities many believe White-Cain lacks.

In the context of this opinion piece, her role serves as an example of how false teachers can be elevated to positions of influence, making it even more important for believers to discern truth from deception. The presence of figures like Paula White-Cain in such roles is a reminder that not everything labeled "Christian" aligns with Christ's teachings, and it is the responsibility of the faithful to stay vigilant in seeking biblical truth.

Paula White-Cain and the Deception of False Light: A Biblical Warning Against Tarot and False Teachings

The image at the top of this opinion piece was created with deliberate intent. Allow me to explain: Paula White-Cain's portrayal as the High Priestess in tarot serves as a stark reminder of the dangers of spiritual deception. Just as tarot cards claim to offer hidden wisdom and divine insight outside of God's word, White-Cain promotes a false gospel that twists biblical truth for personal gain. Her teachings, particularly those associated with the prosperity gospel, mirror the deception inherent in tarot readings—promising blessings, wealth, and success in ways that contradict Scripture.

1. The High Priestess: A False Gatekeeper of Spiritual Truth

In tarot, the High Priestess is a mystical figure who serves as the gatekeeper between the seen and unseen realms, holding secret knowledge that only she can interpret. Similarly, Paula White-Cain has positioned herself as a spiritual authority within the White House, acting as a gatekeeper to faith-based advisement for Donald Trump and his administration and this nation. However, much like tarot cards, her wisdom does not come from God's word but from a distorted version of it.

The Bible warns against self-appointed spiritual leaders who claim to have secret revelations but mislead others:

- Colossians 2:8 in the King James Version (KJV):

"Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ."

White-Cain's prosperity gospel preaches a version of Christianity that relies on wealth and personal success rather than faith, humility, and submission to God's will—aligning her more with worldly spiritualism than biblical truth.

2. Divination, False Prophecies, and the Prosperity Gospel

Tarot readings claim to provide insight into the future and spiritual enlightenment outside of God's revelation. This is exactly what false prophets and prosperity preachers like Paula White-Cain do—they make grand promises of wealth, success, and divine favor, despite the Bible's clear warnings against such deception.

- Jeremiah 23:16 in the King James Version (KJV):

"Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that prophesy unto you: they make you vain: they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord."

White-Cain has made false prophetic claims, including declaring victory for Trump's reelection before it happened and teaching that financial giving to her ministry will unlock supernatural blessings. These tactics manipulate faith in the same way tarot does—by offering a false sense of spiritual control over one's destiny rather than trusting in God's sovereignty.

3. Mixing Christianity with Mysticism and Occult-Like Teachings

White-Cain's teachings blur the lines between Christianity and occult-like practices, similar to tarot. She has been known to invoke "angels from Africa" to intervene in elections, speak of supernatural financial transactions, and promote a name-it-and-claim-it theology, all of which are more akin to mystical divination than biblical Christianity.

The Bible warns against such spiritual distortions:

- 2 Corinthians 11:13-15 in the King James Version (KJV):

"For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light. Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works."

Just as tarot cards disguise fortune-telling as spiritual wisdom, White-Cain disguises self-serving theology as biblical truth—but both lead people away from God rather than toward Him.

4. The White House as a Platform for False Doctrine

Paula White-Cain's appointment to the White House Faith and Opportunity Initiative gave her a position of influence that extended beyond the church and into government.

As a spiritual advisor to President Trump, she became a gatekeeper for religious counsel, determining which faith leaders gained access to the administration. However, instead of using this platform to promote biblical truth, she spread a false gospel that merged faith with political power and personal prosperity.

The Bible warns that those in positions of spiritual influence will be held accountable:

- Matthew 7:15-16 in the King James Version (KJV):

"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits."

Her rise to power mirrors the danger of the High Priestess in tarot—a figure who claims to have divine knowledge but ultimately obscures truth, leading others into deception.

Conclusion: Discerning True Biblical Leadership from False Light

Paula White-Cain serves as a modern example of spiritual deception, much like tarot readings that offer false promises of knowledge and guidance outside of God's word. Whether through her prosperity gospel, false prophecies, or misuse of spiritual authority in politics, her teachings stray far from biblical Christianity.

As believers, we must be vigilant in recognizing false teachers who act as spiritual gatekeepers, distorting the message of Christ for personal or political gain. Just as the Bible warns against tarot, divination, and false prophets, it also warns against leaders like White-Cain, who disguise deception as divine insight.

Instead of looking to worldly mysticism or self-proclaimed prophets, Christians are called to seek wisdom directly from God through His word, trusting in scripture alone as the foundation of truth.
