Narrative

Incident Description

August 23rd, 9 am., I asked Aaron Steven Burbank, whom I had been dating since April 2024, to leave my home due to increasingly erratic and violent behavior. He had arrived earlier that month and became unpredictable, frequently waking me at night with baseless accusations and displaying signs of paranoia. He went through my belongings without permission, defaced a card from my stepfather, and left it on my desk to provoke me. As Aaron left, I saw him loading 2 of my pink carry-on bags into a Lyft, though he had arrived with 1 bag. I tried to stop the driver, but Aaron directed him to go. After he left, I discovered several items missing, including a Nintendo Switch. The AirTag sewn into its case was ripped out. His fingerprints would be on the AirTag, as he could only have touched it if he removed it from the case.

These items were last seen before Aaron's departure, and his bags had been packed the night before, indicating premeditation. I also found a bag with additional items hidden inside socks that appeared like it was going to be stolen too but was left behind. I took a pic of the bag and its contents. I found unauthorized charges on my account linked to him. Recently, his behavior has become more erratic. He totaled his car while texting me & claimed a $3800 fraudulent check froze his acct. He also lied about being a financial advisor at TIAA, having been unemployed and relying on room rentals, which were vacant in July and August.

Aaron knows where my mom, Mrs. Michele Minor, [REDACTED] lives. He visited CA under the pretext of attending my family event at her home. Given his escalating paranoia, claims of PTSD and anxiety, and his unpredictable behavior, I fear for my safety. Aaron bragged about owning over 20 guns, riffles, and bullets and has made troubling statements, such as saying he would "handle me." Considering his military background, erratic behavior, and access to weapons, I am deeply concerned for my safety.
