“Rice Culture in South Carolina, Past and Present”

By Amanda McNulty, Producer/Host of SCETV’s “Making It Grow”

Friday, June 23

Noon

Rice culture shaped the society and health of freed and enslaved South Carolinians. Today, breeding has brought back the original “Carolina Gold” rice which at one time gave SC the highest per capita income in the world; further crosses have introduced even more choices based on the historic standouts.

This program will be held virtually and in person at 119 South Main St. in downtown Lancaster. To attend via Zoom, register via the link on our Facebook page. Please direct any questions or comments to the Center at 803-313-7172 or usclnasp@mailbox.sc.edu.
