Author Bio

Tracey L. Dragon is a native Western New Yorker who resides in Florida with her husband Bill and their Miniature Goldendoodle. She currently writes dual romance novels and children's books.

Tracey developed a love for reading and writing at an early age. Her first publication came at the age of twelve when the poem she wrote about the Apollo moon landing was published in her local hometown newspaper.

Her time spent as a military wife gave her an appreciation for those who served in the armed services and provided her with many rich experiences to draw from when writing. Now after seven military moves, raising two Military Brats, and twenty years teaching troubled youth, she is now able to put her attention to writing and publishing the children's stories and historical romance novels she's written over the years as a hobby.

Her debut romance novel Cherished Wings is scheduled for release by Soul Mate Publishing on July 11, 2018. Cherished Wings is the first book in her Return to the Home Front series to be followed by book two When the Geese Fly North on November 14, 2018. Both books are dual-time romances that begin in the present but weave in and out of the 1940's—a time where love and war were not compatible. Characters from both the past and present have served in the military.

Tracey is a certified high school English teacher, a member of Romance Writer's of America, the Florida Authors & Publishers Assn, and Florida Writer's Assn. She earned the Region II 2002 Juvenile Justice Teacher of the Year Award along with the Florida Literacy Coalition-Mary J. Brogan Leadership Award. Her novel Cherished Wings was a finalist in the RWA Chapter: Romance through the Ages--Hearts through History Contest. Tracey has also published a series of children's books entitled The Military Brat series.

He can be found at Tracey L. Dragon on Facebook, or at www.traceyldragon.com. Cherished Wings will be available through Soul Mate Publishing, Amazon.com and other book outlets, July 11, 2018. Her children's series is currently available at Amazon.com.

"I was completely enthralled with Ms. Dragon's story, and I admit I choked up several times, because I felt I was there and saw the unfairness of life and the brutality of loss."

CHERISHED WINGS Is the first book in the Return to the Home Front series written by Tracey L. Dragon. It will be released by Soul Mate Publishing on July 11, 2018. Cherished Wings is a dual-time romance novel that begins in the present but takes you back to the 1940's.

It skillfully weaves the lessons of the past with the lives of the characters in the present. Two loves stories intertwined in one novel.

Synopsis:

When Sara Kennedy returns to her small hometown in Western New York and visits her dying grandmother, Fran, in the hospital, she asks her about the pair of World War II Navy Wings she found in her dresser drawer.

Her grandmother reluctantly shares with Sara the powerfully love story she had not spoken of in over fifty years. As the tale unfolds, Sara finds herself caught up in a time where things were simpler, yet more complex—where love and war were not compatible.

A story so poignant, it rocks Sara's world and changes her life forever.

CHERISHED WINGS

From The Author

Cherished Wings was inspired by my own mother's story. Although she never spoke of it, my sisters and I all knew of the World War II wings she kept hidden in her dresser. The wings belonged to a beau who was killed during a mission. Upon my mother's death, I did not find the wings, but I did, however, find a small envelope containing his photos, one which was cut to fit the size of one of her lockets. She also kept the glass top of an old bottle of French perfume called Bamboo. It was from these items that the idea for Cherished Wings was sparked and the characters Fran and Jack were created. I hope you fall in love with Lt. Jack McOmber as much as I did while creating him. Please visit my website: traceyldragon.com. I would love to hear from you. My books are available at Soul Mate Publishing.com, Amazon.com and Barnes & Noble.
