Quality

Quality of granite is expressed in grades much like lumber. You have different kinds of granite just like you have different kinds of trees that produce lumber. Each kind of granite has unique characteristics and is better for certain uses. The top grade is more uniform in grain, clarity and texture and will produce the highest quality of finished product.

Pricing

The price of a granite or marble cemetery memorial is determined by the quality (grade), size, type and number of finished surfaces. Other factors are freight, special cuts, the amount of lettering, carvings, extras like photos or vases, and delivery and installation.

Mausoleum

An excellent choice for those wishing the security of above ground interment. The unitized construction of a family mausoleum is available in many colors and designs, offering a secure alternative to in-ground burial.

Special Contour Monument

A popular choice today. This type of monument can be large or small, be of standard or custom design and range from simple to ornate depending on the desires of the purchaser.

Traditional Monuments

You will have a large selection of size, color, floral designs, crosses, emblems and lettering styles to choose from.

Slant Face Markers

This type of marker has a sharp slope on the face where the decorative carving and lettering goes.

These markers are often set on granite bases to simulate a monument and protect the face of the marker.

Bevel Top Marker

The marker is named after the gentle back-to-front slope of the top lettering surface. Bevel Top Markers are popular because of their above ground profile and depending on the length, may be used for one or two people.

Flat Markers

This type of memorial has a flat top surface and is designed to have the top installed flush with the ground.

Bronze Markers

Designed to be installed flush with the ground and are often fastened to a granite or concrete plate for stability. Normally they are only available in a few standard designs.
