

Your training ends.

Your evidence trail starts.

Every school that completes Positive Handling in Schools with PSP receives the Post-Course Assurance & Due Diligence Pack — nine ready-to-use documents that turn a day of training into a defensible governance position.

On 1 April 2026, the rules changed.

Restrictive interventions, including use of reasonable force, in schools replaced the 2013 guidance. Section 93A of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 was commenced, and the Schools (Recording and Reporting of Seclusion and Restraint) (No. 2) (England) Regulations 2025 came into force alongside it.

Recording and reporting stopped being good practice and became law. Your governing body must now take all reasonable steps to ensure those procedures are complied with, and should be interrogating the data for disproportionality. Certificates on a wall will not answer that.

WHAT MOST PROVIDERS LEAVE YOU WITH

A certificate per learner

A course handout

An invoice

And a policy, a risk assessment, a set of forms, a debrief process and a governor report still to write yourself.

WHAT PSP LEAVES YOU WITH

Everything above, plus:

A model policy, a completed-to-template risk assessment, statutory record forms, a debrief protocol, a governor reporting framework and a live Excel tracker — all mapped clause by clause to the April 2026 framework.

Included. Not an upsell.

Why schools tell us this matters

1 It answers the question inspectors actually ask

Not “were your staff trained?” but “how did you satisfy yourselves the provider was competent, and where is the evidence?” The pack contains a completed provider due diligence record and a 22-row compliance matrix mapping every duty to the evidence you hold.

2 It protects the member of staff who has to make the decision to use reasonable force

The report-writing module shows the same incident recorded two ways — the version that will fail you in front of a LADO, and the version that will protect you. Six minutes of writing, done properly, is the strongest evidence a staff member will ever have.

3 It closes the gap most schools do not know they have

Restraint without physical contact — removing a walking frame, blocking a doorway — is recordable under the 2026 Regulations. So is seclusion. Most schools are recording neither. Our forms make it impossible to omit them quietly.

4 It gives your governors something to actually govern with Eight defined metrics, a disproportionality method with a small-numbers rule, a termly report template and fourteen challenge questions. Your board stops receiving a number and starts scrutinising a trend.

5 It joins up your two statutory frameworks

Keeping Children Safe In Education (KCSIE) 2026 updated its reasonable force paragraphs specifically to reflect the new restrictive intervention guidance. Most schools hold the two documents separately and hope they agree. We map them onto each other — including the point most staff get wrong: recording every incident is a legal duty, but referring every incident to the LADO is not.

6 It is written by people who have done the job

PSP was founded by a practitioner with over a decade in senior custodial operations. Our syllabus excludes pain compliance and planned ground restraint, and every technique is medically risk-assessed. We train HM Courts & Tribunals Service, the Environment Agency, Forestry England, Defra and the Cabinet Office.

What is inside the pack

	Document	What it does for you
01	Governance & Assurance Summary	Provider due diligence record, compliance mapping matrix, inspection question bank, evidence checklist and a 90-day implementation plan.
02	Model Risk Assessment	Sixteen pre-populated hazards with model controls, from positional asphyxia to disproportionality. Signed, it discharges your HSWA 1974 duty.
03	Individual Plan & Pupil Risk Assessment	Co-produced with pupil and parents. Escalation profile, contraindications, agreed and prohibited interventions.
04	Report Writing Checklist & Records	The two statutory routes explained, minimum-content checklists, a worked good/poor example, Forms A and B, and the parent notification letter.
05	Post-Incident Support & Debrief	Timed from the first ten minutes to the six-week follow-up, with staff and pupil reflection templates and a bystander log.
06	Model Policy	Seventeen sections drafted against the guidance, ready for your board to adopt or to merge into your behaviour policy.

	Document	What it does for you
07	Monitoring & Governor Reporting	Dataset, metrics, disproportionality method, termly report template and governor challenge questions.
08	Training & Incident Tracker (Excel)	Automatic refresher alerts, a structured incident log and a self-calculating dashboard you can screenshot into your governor report.
09	Safeguarding Alignment — KCSIE 2026	Where restrictive interventions meet Keeping Children Safe in Education 2026: the harm threshold test, low-level concerns, suspension and staff support, plus a laminate-ready staff quick card.

Every document is editable, branded to your school on request, and yours to keep

We do not licence the pack back to you, charge per template, or hold it behind a portal. It is a Word and Excel handover, and it is included with the course.
