

Woodstock's "Day in the Garden"
And the Legend Goes On
By Edward Brender

In '69 Woodstock came
It shook the world
It unfurled an event
Heard "round the world"

With laughter and song
The young came in vain
Nothing could stop them
Not even the rain

Great rock concert singers performed
In sound quite loud
The event went on
To a very please crowd

There were three quarter of a million
They came in a steady stream
The Town of Bethel was in shock
But the world will remember Woodstock

White Lake Homes, Reinshagen and Vassmer
Pitched in to help
Feeding the hungry crowds
Without even a yelp

Now '69 is gone
The '94 25th anniversary has passed
It's '98 now and the songs continue
The "Day in the Garden" now lingers

In '98 the event at Yasgur's Farm
Was well conceived and organized
This time, it did no harm
The seed has been planted, the idea is expanding
The foundation of a future is in place
And a bright future is transcending
