

Let's Give a Warm Welcome to
The New Jersey Alliance of Family Support Organizations

New Executive Director
Jessica Santiago

Jessica Santiago has been appointed as the Executive Director of the New Jersey Alliance of Family Support Organizations (NJAFSO), where she leads statewide efforts to strengthen family support services. Jessica is a graduate of Thomas Edison State University where she received her bachelor's in psychology. Prior to working at the NJ Alliance of Family Support Organizations she worked as a Behavioral Assistant in Atlantic County and provided translation services for Early Intervention.

Jessica Santiago is a dedicated and compassionate professional. In this pivotal role, Jessica leads the training curriculum and provides technical assistance to the 15 Family Support Organizations (FSOs) across the state, ensuring they are equipped to empower families and individuals navigating any child-serving system within the state of New Jersey, including the Juvenile Justice System.

With over a decade of experience at NJAFSO, Jessica has been instrumental in transforming the landscape of family support services in New Jersey. She began her journey as a Program Coordinator and quickly made her mark by assisting in the realignment of the state's Family Support Organizations. Her innovative approach to refining the FSO service delivery model has made it more effective, efficient, and responsive to the needs of families.

Beyond her leadership at NJAFSO, Jessica serves on the boards of several organizations, including the Conference of Minority Public Administrators and Angels in Motion. Her commitment to advocacy and collaboration reflects her dedication to ensuring every Family Support Organization thrives and every family receives the support they deserve.
