Indexed Tuition Financial Needs Assessment Process

Cherokee Classical Christian School expects every family in the school community to contribute to the operating expenses of the school. In an effort to assess a family's ability to afford a Cherokee Classical Christian School education, the school uses FACTS as an objective and independent third party. FACTS provides a tuition recommendation to the school. To maintain the integrity of the indexed tuition process, Cherokee Classical Christian School will not offer a tuition lower than that recommended by FACTS.

In order to find the appropriate tuition amount, FACTS will assess the financial need of each family. To do this, many factors are considered including income, assets, number of dependents, and the number of children attending schools that charge tuition. The FACTS process will also include discretionary spending including but not limited to: medical expenses, consumer debt, automobiles, and additional property.
