What Do Countries With The Best Coronavirus Reponses Have In Common? Women Leaders

By Avivah Wittenberg-Cox, Contributor

Political Leaders Showing the Way 20-first

Now, compare these leaders and stories with the strongmen using the crisis to accelerate a terrifying trifecta of authoritarianism: blame-“others”, capture-the-judiciary, demonize-the-journalists, and blanket their country in I-will-never-retire darkness (Trump, Bolsonaro, Obrador, Modi, Duterte, Orban, Putin, Netanyahu...).

There have been years of research timidly suggesting that women’s leadership styles might be different and beneficial. Instead, too many political organisations and companies are still working to get women to behave more like men if they want to lead or succeed. Yet these national leaders are case study sightings of the seven leadership traits men may want to learn from women.

It’s time we recognised it – and elected more of it.

THE GREAT LOCKDOWN OF THE ECONOMY

The unemployment rate, which had been hovering at 50-year lows before the disease hit, was better than the 16 per cent economists had expected but sharply higher from just 4.4 per cent in March and its peak of 10 per cent during the 2008-90 financial crisis. During the Great Depression it was estimated to have reached about 25 per cent.

“The prospect of a V-shaped recovery is absolutely zero,” said James Knightley, chief international economist with ING. “Getting 40m jobs returning in the next 12 months? I simply cannot see it happening.”

Coming attractions: cinema after covid

It is a long intermission. Most cinemas in the West closed in March, and few will reopen before July, when the next big films are due. When the curtains rise, the movies will be different. Expect fewer theatres: the big chains were heavily indebted even before the pandemic, and will sell properties to pay their bills. But also expect bigger blockbusters. Falling cinema attendance means ever greater competition to be among the three or

At least 90,000 health care workers infected with coronavirus around the world

From CNN's Lindsay Isaac

Governments are failing to keep accurate records of infections and deaths of nurses and health care workers treating coronavirus patients, the International Council of Nurses (ICN), a federation representing nurses from 130 countries, claimed.

As a result, the numbers are being "significantly" underestimated, the ICN said Monday. Data collected by the ICN from 30 countries suggests at least 90,000 health care workers have been infected and more than 260 nurses have died.

"Thousands of nurses have been infected with Covid-19 and hundreds have already died, but governments cannot say exactly how many because they are not collecting the data. This lack of accurate data has led to a serious underestimation of the infection rate among nurses, and the number of deaths," the group said.
