VET TECH FRIDAYS

Knowledge, News, and Updates

Welcoming Our Newest Students

Leadership Begins with How We Treat Those Who Walk in After Us

We have new students starting on Monday!

Pause for a second and remember your first day. The nerves. The excitement. The uncertainty. Wondering where to go. Wondering who you would sit by. Wondering if you would fit in.

It only takes one interaction to help someone feel like they belong. And when someone is new, that moment matters more than you think.

Beginning Monday, you are the upperclassmen.

Whether you realize it or not, new students will watch you to understand what Vet Tech Institute of Indiana is like. They will learn from your tone, your attitude, and how you treat others.

A simple:

- “Hi!”
- “Welcome to Vet Tech Institute of Indiana!”
- “Where are you headed?”
- “Want to sit with us?”

can completely change someone’s first week.

Hold doors. Offer directions. Invite them to lunch. Share advice you wish someone had shared with you. If someone looks lost, go to them instead of waiting to be asked.

This is not about being outgoing. It is about being intentional.

In veterinary medicine, first impressions matter. Clients decide within seconds how they feel about a clinic. The way they are greeted. The way staff speak to one another. The way the environment feels. What you practice here is what you will carry into every future clinic or hospital you serve, and they’ll carry that experience into every future clinic or hospital they serve.

Leadership does not require a title. It requires action.

Let’s be the kind of upperclassmen we would have wanted on your first day.

Let’s show them what VTI is all about.

11DV25 students Chloe Trick, Clayton Rodriguez, and Jazmyne Wallace are ready for their last finals!

For their final speech in Interpersonal Communications, students could choose any topic they were passionate about. 07DV25 student Edith Morales-Hernandez chose to honor her mother's secret tamale recipe by making them for her classmates to enjoy. What a delicious way to bring communication, culture, and community together.

🚨 Naugty Pet of the Week 🚨
Buddy the cat chose chaos this week and swiped a lamp right off the window ledge. Zero regrets. Maximum drama.

11DV25 students Lilly Hall, Secilia Wrona, Aurora Roberts, and Mary Strother review past exams with Mrs. Stout to sharpen their skills and prepare for finals. Study smart, finish strong!
