Preceptor Responsibilities - The International Registry of Midwives takes maternal and neonatal healthcare and education very seriously, we are dedicated to certifying highly skilled birth workers who intend to use their skills to improve the care and education of women and their children. We believe that competent and compassionate birth workers are the key to improving maternal and neonatal care/outcomes worldwide. As a preceptor you are responsible for ensuring the student/students you are overseeing are proficient and confident in their midwifery skills while maintaining an empathetic and compassionate disposition.

Do you agree to train/oversee your apprentices/students with the utmost confidence and skill? Maintaining our criteria?

- YES
- NO

Preceptor & Apprentice Relationship - The International Registry of Midwives expects the preceptor/apprenticeship relationships to be healthy and professional.

As the preceptor you are entrusted with creating a fair, honest, mutually respected environment for you and your apprentice to work in.

The apprentice/student needs to respect you as the preceptor and you need to respect the apprentice/student as a valuable team member.

Both the preceptor and apprentice should have a clear understanding of responsibility and roles.

For Example:

- Financial obligations
- Clinical observations
- Time on call
- One on one training
- Skills demonstration

Do you agree to provide clear expectations of the apprentice/student from the beginning while maintaining a professional and respectful environment?

- YES
- NO
