DISFRUTAR

The world of wine is as diverse as those of us who drink it. There are hundreds of grapes, countless wonderful places where they are grown and almost infinite combinations that can be achieved.

So a wine list is almost like a book; one that tells no other truth than yours, your own journey, but of course it seeks to please and aspires to discover.

Therefore, we have chosen all of these wines following a very varied criteria. Some are our favorites, but others are not; because our taste sometimes is not the same of others.

There are wines from large wineries, traditional ones, some more special and others easygoing.

A few risky ones, more innovative, even fun, or surprising.

But what can surprise us today? Sometimes it's about discovering or revisiting something that is well made, like a classic Verdejo or an impeccable Tempranillo.

In other moments it is a matter of trying a wine that we think we know, but grown in another part of the world. It is a real game for adults to discover what is different and what is the same compared to the wine of our land.

But sometimes, the secret is not to think so much but to choose something that we know we like or, on the contrary, to let ourselves go and let other people to decide it for us. Of course, any case, it's about 'disfrutar' (enjoying).

Two of the oldest wineries in Spain. Above, barrels of a Malvasía wine from Lanzarote from 1881 belonging to Bodegas El Grifo; and below one of the most prestigious houses in Rioja: Marqués de Riscal (1883)

Being 100% Albillo Criollo gives it a different personality than almost any other white from the Canary Islands. The grapes come from clay and somewhat stony soil, at 850 meters of altitude in the municipality of Arafo. Manual selection and harvest, fermented with its own yeast in a steel tank, where it remains for 6 months. It has very low sulfur levels and there are barely 1,200 bottles.

On the nose, aromas of mango, pineapple and a touch of lemon stand out, intertwined with delicate notes of orange blossom and jasmine. In the mouth, it is light and refreshing, a drink full of tropical and floral aromas in perfect harmony. The winery is betting that this lees is a very long-lasting wine with great aging capacity: "a white with the soul of a red." The truth is that their bottles usually sell out within the year, but maybe we'll save some to make something special in the future.

ALBARIÑO
11/12	The best white in Spain 69,5€

Probably the best white wine in Spain and one of the best in the world, and it's not us that says it, but the Peñín Guide (99 points). It is difficult to disagree with them considering that Parker has given it 94 and 95 points, respectively, in these two vintages that we have saved for you (2011 and 2012).

And we have done it because it is a white that is already ready but also has spectacular aging potential, banishing that traditional idea that whites must be of the year. So not only the French know how to make aged white wines, barrel-aged or aged. Spain hits the table.

Broad, with great volume and body, straw yellow, lively, with high intensity, aromas of aging and mineral memories.

Perfect with fish or any of our rice dishes.
