Learn the best practices developed over time by early pioneers in Remote & Hybrid Teams.

Covid-19 accelerated the transition to remote and hybrid forms of working, due to the necessity to reduce staff numbers on site, while maintaining the same level of overall service. Now that the pandemic is largely over, organisational leaders and HR personnel need to find the formula of work that best suits both employee and organisation.

This workshop has been developed from both academic research and from the practical experience of leaders who pioneered remote and hybrid work in organisations. You will learn about how managers structure team leadership, delegate work, measure and monitor task completion, communicate effectively, structure meetings, create employee development plans, and carry out performance management activities.
