Volunteering

As a volunteer with No More Butts, you will be contributing your valuable time to an incredible cause. By volunteering with us, you will help build awareness and create solutions to protect our natural environment by assisting in the reduction of cigarette butt litter.

Your application

If your background and passion suit our purpose and culture, we'd love you to apply. We will review and reply to all applicants, whether successful or not. Successful applicants would require a video interview, where you will be asked some questions and asked to showcase your previous experience relating to your application, such as social pages, press releases, grant submissions, database management.

Training provided

Whilst no formal training is planned, you will be volunteering with other people who have a variety of experience who would be willing to provide mentoring and support to the successful applicant.

Reimbursement provided

Expenses relating directly to your volunteer position that are pre-approved by the Board will be reimbursed.

Time required

As an ongoing commitment, we'd prefer a minimum of five (5) hours a week, at your own schedule. It is likely that additional hours would be required initially as we finalise the set-up of operations and responsibilities.

As a volunteer, we understand that you may have other commitments and we are open for flexible arrangements.

If you have more time to give, we will gladly take it, especially if you have experience in other areas, such as communications, grant writing, fundraising etc.

Preference will be given to those who believe they can commit to 6 months initially, so we can build a strong team and consistent messaging, however all candidates will be considered.
