"When I look at the flag today, I don't just see red, white and blue fabric. I see sacrifice, duty and the faces of the men and women I served with. I see the responsibility I carry as a veteran and as a father. I see the future in my children's eyes and the past in the memories I carry. Most of all, I see a reminder that freedom is both a privilege and a responsibility, one that must be protected, respected and passed on."
