We are not the owners of creation; rather, “the earth is the Lord’s, and everything in it” (Psalm 24:1). As God’s children, we acknowledge creation care as an act of discipleship; we are stewards of the earth, summoned by God to “work it and take care of it” (Genesis 2:15). Our uses of the earth must be designed to conserve and renew it rather than to deplete or destroy it.

STEAM principles support making our world a better and more thriving environment that honors God.

STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, Math) is a part of educational programs all around the world. Students will enjoy problem solving and collaboration to open ended projects and challenges using basic STEAM principles. Specifically designed projects both individually and in small groups will heighten imagination, enjoyment, and curiosity. Students will be creative with a diverse range of tools and materials and develop tangible skills in mixed media art, multidisciplinary writing (study of 23rd Psalm), and STEAM.

Learning should be fun and what better way to spend the summer days then diving into creativity and exploration!
