TECHNICAL BULLETIN — MAY 2007

317. Tivoli Orbitor Accident in Ireland

The committee has been informed of an accident involving a Tivoli Orbitor ride. The accident occurred on the 31st October 2006 at Castlebar, Co Mayo, Ireland. The report states that a woman “fell” from the ride whilst in operation. The woman was approximately 5’ 6” tall and weighted approximately 38 to 44 kg. The preliminary investigation found that all passenger restraints were working correctly. Witnesses stated that the passenger slipped from underneath the lap bar restraint. The Garda are investigating the accident.

This Technical Bulletin should be considered as an alert to the membership. The investigation is not yet complete and so any additional information will be communicated as and when it is available.
