

PRESS KIT

What is All Things Architecture?

We are a digital media start-up that celebrates architecture through informative and captivating content about the buildings that make up our world.

What do we do?

We create a variety of content that helps others better understand the world of architecture. We do this through our YouTube channel, podcasts, social media, and blog. Our popular short documentaries and videos tell captivating stories exploring the history of architecture. Our videos also demystify the complexities of architecture to create better appreciation for the built environment. All Things Architecture's blog and social media channels discuss news and challenges facing the architecture profession.

Is All Things Architecture only for architects?

While those in the architecture field will enjoy our content, we pride ourselves on creating content that is interesting for everyone. So, whether someone is an architect, a student, or simply a design enthusiast, there is something for everyone here.

What is All Things Architecture Classroom?

We want the next generation to have a knowledge and passion for architecture and design. To do this, we have created several learning resources that teachers and students can use in their high school and college-level classes. We offer lesson plans, reading resources, activities, and videos with the hope that students will understand the significant role architecture has in shaping our world.

Where can you find our content?

YouTube: @AllThingsArchitecture

Website: archbydesign.com

Instagram: @all_things_arch

X: @all_things_arch

Email: info@archbydesign.com

About Steve Park

Steve Park is an architecture writer and documentarian based in Los Angeles, California. His passion for architecture goes back to family road trips as a child. His passion would expand over the years. In June 2020, Steve launched All Things Architecture with the purpose of sharing his passion for architecture.